GERMANS IN PARLEY WITH LEADERS OF BOLSHEVISTS

Warsaw Mission Reports Negotiations Have Been Begun At Suwalki

HALLER AT HELM

First Step Is Taken Towards Reorganisation Of Polish Army

FRENCH ACTIVE

Republic's Officers Have Taken Over Important Technical Services

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 1.—The Polish situation is still unclear.

According to a Warsaw telegram the Polish armistice delegates met the Bolshevist delegates on the Brest-Litovsk-Baranovitchi road on the evening of July 30.

The French Military Mission at Warsaw reports that Bolshevists and Germans are negotiating at Suwalki. General Haller has taken over command of the northern group of Polish armies. This is the first step towards the reorganisation of the Polish army. French officers have taken over all important technical services.

Reuter's Berlin correspondent telegraphs:

"It is semi-officially stated that the German Government have asked the Peace Conference speedily to reply to the German request for permission to take the necessary measures to maintain neutrality on Germany's eastern frontier and have requested the Entente to provide transport facilities to transfer the interned Polish troops to the interior of Germany."

FRANCE AGREES TO AID GERMAN COAL DELIVERY

Millerand Wins Fight In Chamber For Advances To Former Foes

(Reuter's Service)

PARIS, July 31.—By 356 votes To 161 the French Chamber of Deputies today passed the bill for the advances to Germany to facilitate the delivery of coal, agreed upon at the Spa Conference. This constitutes a triumph for M. Millerand for the debate was expected to be a lively one.

M. Bokanowsky, reporter of the Finance Committee, pointed out the gravity of the financial problem and maintained that any addition to the budget program would endanger social peace and the economic reorganisation of the country. France, he said, had reached the extreme limit of possible sacrifices.

SUPPORTS BILL

M. Rollin, reporter of the Foreign Affairs Committee, supported the bill. He declared that the Boulogne Conference had much improved the Spa arrangements, which, he said, M. Millerand had accepted through necessity.

M. Millerand, replying to the debate, emphasised that the coal question was the essential question. He said that to assure that coal should not be lacking for the family hearth or for the factories was to realise the first condition of internal order and economic prosperity.

CLOSE ENTENTE NEEDED

M. Millerand insisted that the need for a close "entente" between the Allies was never greater than at the present moment and called upon the Chamber to furnish a fresh proof of its political spirit and to serve the national interests.

Sob, Boys, Here Goes A Fortune Out Of Town!

MISS MAE AIMAN

Summons the Ministry of Finance!

Away to the Bastile with the Shanghai Boosters' Legion!

A perfectly good fortune attached to a charming young lady is getting away from Shanghai today and not one of the swains of the Far East has been sufficiently awake to the call of opportunity to break down the barriers that have been erected as safeguards around the heart of the fair possessor of the wealth.

She's Miss Mae Aiman, daughter of a Pennsylvania senator who has been devoting his spare moments to accumulating about half the real estate in that commonwealth since he retired from politics a few years ago. She's been traveling in China and other places in the Far East for a year in search of adventure—but she will board a steamer bound for Japan today without any such encumberance as a diamond cluttering up the third finger of her left hand.

That is, she will board the ship with unadorned engagement finger unless one of the young gentlemen, some of them carrying titles and others mere commoners, who have been in her train constantly since her arrival in Shanghai prevail upon her this morning to change her mind on the subject of matrimonial bliss.

Miss Aiman expects to spend a month in Japan, visiting Miyanoshita, Nikko and various other points of interest. She will then return to her home in Philadelphia.

SALT REVENUES MUST BE PAID HERE, IS ORDER

Gen. Chang Countermands Rule That Threatened To Cause International Row

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, August 2.—General Chang Tso-lin in response to the Salt Administration's protest has countermanded the order to the Bank of China at Newchwang not to remit Salt Revenues to Shanghai.

Recent order of the Tuchun of the three Eastern provinces that payment of salt revenues to Shanghai should be discontinued created considerable uneasiness because of the fear that international complications would be a result of the action. News of Chang's recession from his former position was received with satisfaction in Shanghai last evening.

Seoul Streets Under Water In Downpour

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Seoul, August 2.—The heaviest downpour of rain for many years, lasting for 30 hours, has turned the low lying streets of Seoul into muddy rivers and inundated hundreds of houses.

Communications are broken and no newspapers were published today.

The Governor General entertained Sir Charles Eliot and the leading local British residents to luncheon today.

Celestial, Second Of Four U.S. Shipping Board Boats, Is Launched At Kiangnan

Vessel Is Christened With Simple Ceremony By Mrs. Perry In Presence Of Distinguished Gathering Of Officials And Others

A close packed throng stood under the blazing August sun yesterday at the yards of the Kiangnan Dock and Engineering Works and raised a lusty cheer when The Celestial, second of four huge steamers the United States Shipping Board has bought in China, slipped swiftly down the ways into the brown flood of the Whangpoo.

The vessel was christened by Mrs. A. M. Perry, wife of Inspector Perry, who represents the Shipping Board at Shanghai, and the crashing of the bottle of wine against the bow of the steel hulk was witnessed by a distinguished gathering that included a number of prominent consular, municipal and Chinese officials.

ALL BIG SHIPS

The four ships that the Kiangnan Dock and Engineering Works is turning out for the American Shipping Board all are big cargo carriers—vessels with a displacement of 14,750 tons and of 10,500 tons deadweight. They are, in fact, the largest vessels ever built in China. The first of these vessels to take to the water, The Mandarin, was launched on June 3 last after being christened by Mrs. Charles R. Crane, wife of the American Minister. The Mandarin has been fitted with boilers and will be made ready for sea as soon as certain equipment, delayed in delivery, is received from America.

The Cathay will be the next of the four to be launched and this proabably will take place in September or early in October. The Oriental will follow soon after.

NO CEREMONY

The launching itself yesterday was done briefly and simply without speeches or other ceremony. A detachment of Chinese troops stood at attention while the little gathering of invited guests mounted to the raised platform upreared near the bow of the ship. From the deep shadow underneath the hull came the rhythmic sing-song of coolies manning a battering ram with which the key blocks that held the ship were loosed. On a signal Mrs. Perry broke the wine bottle and then, at first almost imperceptibly the steel mass trembled into motion, sliding with gathering speed until it dipped gracefully into the water and at last floated out on the stream with its high bow pointed toward the sea.

After the launching the gathering assembled in a room of one of the buildings and here a single address was given by Mr. H. K. Kwong on behalf of the Board of Directors of the builders.

SPEECH IS BRIEF

"We have just seen the successful launching of the steamer Celestial," he said. "It is the second of the four freighters for the United States Shipping Board Fleet Corporation.

"I am sure that we all wish the vessel a successful and safe career. She is now going forth to carry not only cargo but also good will to all nations.

"I therefore have much pleasure in proposing a toast to the good ship Celestial."

After this had been drank, Captain Kwong, father of the speaker and one of the directors, presented Mrs. Perry with a huge silver bowl on which was inscribed:

Presented to Mrs. A. M. Perry by The Directors of the Kiangnan Dock and Engineering Works; s.s. Celestial; Shanghai, August 2, 1920."

THOSE PRESENT

Among those present were Mr. Edwin S. Cunningham, U. S. Consul-General, Mr. A. D. Eberhardt, U. S. Consul-General at large; Captain Eisler, Mr. S. L. Ware, and Mr. M. A. Perry, representing the U. S. Shipping Board, Col. T. D. Sun, representing the military Governor of Shanghai and Sungkiang; George Chien Han, [illegible] Minister of Justice; Mr. K. Yamasaki, Japanese Consul-General, Mr. J. Harold Dollar, President of the American Chamber of Commerce; Captain W. H. Lunt, Captain Tyler, Messrs. R. G. H. Cole, George Matheson, T. W. Steadman, T. A. Clark, A. K. Craddock, J. B. Powell, A. B. Cahill, O. G. Stean, Bowden, Souter, and many others including a number of ladies.

Plans Completed To Greet Congressional Party Here

With but one day left before the United States Congressional Party arrives in Shanghai, plans are being rapidly completed to greet the guests.

Tomorrow, the day of their arrival, will be devoted almost entirely to Chinese functions. The party is due at Woosung at 4 o'clock in the morning on the U.S.S. Transport Great Northern. A special Chinese reception committee consisting of Dr. C. T. Wang, Mr. David Z. T. Yui, Dr. T. H. Lee and Mr. C. P. Yin will meet the delegation and escort its members ashore.

CHINESE FEAST

At noon tomorrow, the guests will be entertained at a Chinese feast at the newly built portion of the Great Eastern Hotel, where 300 ladies and gentlemen are expected by 18 local bodies. A program of entertainments has been prepared.

Between 6 and 7 o'clock, the delegation will be guests at a reception to be given by eight local officials at the Foreign Bureau.

The hosts are Mr. Hsu Yuan Commissioner of Foreign Affairs, Admiral K. K. Lang, Commander-in-chief of the Chinese Navy; General Ho Fung-lin, the Acting Defense Commissioner; Mr. Wang Kung-ting, the Taoyin; Mr. Yao Wen-fu, Superintendant of Customs; Mr. Shen Pao-chang, the City Magistrate; Mr. C. P. Yin, Managing Director of the Shanghai-Nanking and the Shanghai-Hangchow-Ningpo Railways and Mr. Hsu Kuo-liang, Chief of the Nantao Police.

PAN PACIFIC UNION

In the evening the newly inaugurated international body, the Pan-Pacific Union, will give a dinner at the Astor House at 8 o'clock. The affair is open to both men and women and reservations should be made at once with the secretary of the local branch, Mr. George A. Fitch at the Y.M.C.A.

Through the efforts of Mr. Chung Meng-yew, Director of the Shanghai Mint, the union has secured the services of two of the best-known conjurers who will entertain the visitors with a sleight-of-hand performance. A Cantonese orchestra of ten pieces will render some jazz music.

PLAN ADDRESSES

Speeches will be given by the following: The representative of the Congressional Party, Dr. Sun Yat-sen, Dr. Wu Ting-fang, Dr. Paul S. Reinsch, and Mr. A. H. Ford. Mr. Tong Shao-yi, President, will preside. There will be special Chinese and foreign music and juggling.

On the following morning, Friday at 9 o'clock, the party will again be taken round by the Chinese merchants for sight-seeing. Among other places that the visitors will inspect are the Hou Seng and Teh Dah Cotton Mills, managed by Mr. H. Y. Moh and the Chin Woo Athletic Association on Baikal Road.

FRIDAY EVENTS

On Friday at tiffin the ladies of the Congressional party will be entertained at the Astor House at 1 o'clock by the American Women's Club, while the men will be guests at the American Club.

All American ladies desiring to attend should communicate before Thursday noon with one of the following; Mrs. R. I. Clapp, 4 Ezra Road, Telephone C. 975; Mrs. N. E. Lurton, 12 Whangpoo Road, Telephone N. 349 or Mrs. Julian Petit, 2 A Yu-yuen Road, Telephone W. 347.

COMMUNITY DINNER

The main American affair will be the dinner of the American Community to be held at the Carlton Cafe on Friday night at 8 o'clock. The subscription price for this is Ten Dollars.

The housing committee for the congressional party reports that there are still a few members of the party who have not been placed. If there are any Americans who would find it convenient to entertain one or more, it would be greatly appreciated if they would communicate with Mrs. J. N. Alexander, Telephone N. 2247.

Elsie Ferguson Is Here But SHE ISN'T TALKING TO US!

ELSIE FERGUSON CLARK

Elsie Ferguson was seen on the screen here recently as a motion picture actress.

Anyone, who had a ticket, could see her then.

But Mrs. T. B. Clark, Jr., wife of a vice-president of the Harriman National Bank of New York, was too exhausted yesterday afternoon when she returned to the Astor House after a motor trip to see anyone or send any message to the local film fans.

"She is Mrs. Clark on this trip—not an actress," graciously explained Miss Ferguson's charming secretary, Miss Natalo Rector. "Besides she has been so outrageously misquoted in the few interviews she has given that the people of Shanghai must suffer for the evils of others."

It was suggested that the Shanghai public might survive the blow.

Miss Rector agreed.

The reporter didn't know whether his job would survive.

Again Miss Rector agreed.

In fact, she is a most agreeable young lady.

WILD SCENES AS MANNIX DEPARTS FROM NEW YORK

(Reuter's Service)

New York, August 1.—Wild scenes accompanied the embarcation of Archbishop Mannix on board the White Star liner Baltic for Great Britain.

The Archbishop was visited by de Valera.

London, August 1.—There were stormy scenes at Tipperary following the ambushing, near Oola, of the military lorry which picked up Brigadier General Lucas. A party of troops paraded the town shouting "avenge our comrades." No damage was done beyond the smashing of a number of windows.

London, August 1.—While it is affirmed that Mr. Lloyd George is showing an inflexible front to Sinn Fein's demand for a republic, many Unionists fear that the Prime Minister is secretly negotiating instead of openly annihilating the movement, and these recalcitrants intend to move the adjournment of the House of Commons on Monday to discuss the Prime Minister's attitude towards Russia and Ireland.

There is every possibility of a fight between Coalition Liberals and Unionists, threatening a grave split.

India Visit May Be Postponed Year By British Prince

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 1.—The Sunday Times states: "It is definitely settled that the Prince of Wales' visit to India will be postponed, unless on his return to England, he is found to be thoroughly fit to undertake the journey. His Majesty is unwilling to disappoint India by the suggested substitution of the Duke of York, and therefore, if necessary, the tour will be postponed for a year."

TWO CHILDREN AND MAN KILLED WHEN AIRMAN CRASHES

New York, August 1.—It is announced that Cunard liners will not land passengers at Queenstown.

TIMES PUBLISHER PREDICTS COUNCIL IN BRITISH EMPIRE

(Reuter's Service)

Fredericton, N.B., July 31.—A civic luncheon was given here today in honor of the Imperial Press Conference delegates.

Sir Campbell Stuart, deputy chairman of the Times Publishing Co., in the course of a speech foreshadowed the formation of some kind of permanent Imperial Council dealing with all the major affairs of the Empire.

Mr. George Isaacs, of the National Society of Printers, declared that all elements represented at the conference would work harmoniously to maintain the highest ideals of the British Empire and further cement the bond of union between the Motherland and the Colonies."

Sports Announcement!

Beginning this morning, THE CHINA PRESS inaugurates a new feature—a page devoted exclusively to the discussion of sporting events throughout the world.

Shanghai being essentially a sport-loving community, it is believed that THE CHINA PRESS readers will appreciate the special efforts to be made in order that they may have up-to-the-minute, vivid and accurate reports of happenings in the world of sport; and will assist in making this page a big success.

The sports department has been placed in the hands of Dudley Burrows, formerly assistant sports editor of the San Francisco Bulletin and later racing expert on the sports staff of the New York Tribune and associate editor of Boxing, a weekly published in the American metropolis.

He will be assisted by such "regulars" as "Domino," R. W. McCabe, Miss Viola Vercleire of baseball fame, "Skip" and others; but he will also greatly appreciate the volunteer assistance he hopes to receive from readers of THE CHINA PRESS.

Notices of approaching events in the local sporting world should be communicated to the Sports Editor, in order that the events may be "covered" by representatives of THE CHINA PRESS and the results subsequently announced to the reading public of Shanghai.

Arrival Of Colleague At Tientsin Retards Trip Of Mukden Chief

TO RE-SEAT CHIN

Principal Portfolios To Go To Old Chiaotung Clique Members

BY NATHANIEL PEFFER
(Staff Wire to THE CHINA PRESS)

Peking, August 3.—The arrival of General Wu Pei-fu at Tientsin is delaying the journey to be made by General Chang Tso-lin to Peking, where everything has been prepared for his welcome and entertainment.

The announcement of the personnel of the Cabinet is also postponed pending the decision of the Tientsin conference, at which Generals Wu, Chang and Tsao Kun will be the chief participants. However, it is indicated that General Chin Yun-peng will resume his office as Premier, while members of the old Chiaotung clique will be given the principal portfolios in the new ministry.

TO CALL CONVENTION

The students in Peking and vicinity have endorsed the plans of General Wu Pei-fu to call a national citizens' convention for the settlement of the internal political situation and for the government.

General Wu's plan includes the calling of a national citizens' convention to enact a permanent constitution and to chose a national legislature. He is most emphatic that no official supervision of the work of the convention will be tolerated. He suggests that the working of the plans should be entrusted to the recognised educational, industrial and commercial bodies of the different cities.

RIFLES TO SHANHAIKWAN

Tientsin, August 3.—The departure of Generals Chang Tso-lin and Tsao Kun for Peking yesterday was postponed owing to the arrival of General Wu Pei-fu in Tientsin yesterday evening.

Coke's Rifles left Tientsin yesterday evening for Shanhaikwan.

MUNITION EXPLOSION

Peking, August 3.—Alarm was created in Peking this morning by the explosion of some shells at the Gendarmerie munition depot inside Hanchitss. The populace feared that there had been a resumption of fighting.

The explosion which occurred at 4 o'clock, was heard throughout the greater part of the city. It shook many houses and broke much glass. There were no casualties.

The Tartar General of Chahar has placed Li Yuan the Amban at Urga under surveillance. Li Yuan was accompanied by the Mongolian delegation.

General Li Shun will shortly replace Wang I-tang as Chief Northern Peace Delegate.

Railroad Rates In U.S. Increased To Meet Payrolls

Labor Board's Rulings Cause Additional Burden On American Shippers

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, August 1.—In response to the railroads' application the Interstate Commerce Commission has granted advances in railroad freight rates of 40 percent in the East, 25 percent in the South, 35 percent in the West and 25 percent in mountain and Pacific territory.

Passenger fares will be increased 20 percent to help to meet the increase of $600,000,000 in wages granted by the Railroad Labor Board.

It is estimated that the increases will aggregate $1,400,000,000 a year. The new rates are expected to operate before September 1st, when the Government guarantee for Railroads expires.

AMERICANS IN PARIS NOT ALL FOR GAYETY

War Developed Appreciation Of Art And Music Among Tourists

Paris, June 20.—With the approach of summer, tourists from the United States are finding the crowded hotels depressing, and are taking the fullest advantage of the French Government's edict allowing cafes, theaters and restaurants to remain open after midnight, with the result that the boulevards, as far as speech is concerned, seem to be more American than during the war.

While the terrace proprietors are rejoicing this is not the case with the backers of night clubs, who are no longer able to charge fancy prices for champagnes to the thirsty sojourners from across the Atlantic. But the interest of the Americans is not confined to night pleasures.

Apparently the war has developed a more serious appreciation of art and music. Special expositions and concerts are being arranged for members of the American colony. The greatest attraction of the last week was an exhibit of Alpine studies by William S. Horton, American artist, at the Bernheim Galleries, where his winter landscapes of the Swiss and French Alps evoked praise from the most severe French critics, who see in him one of the coming leaders of the Beaux Arts exhibitions. Mr. Horton is developing talent in still life studies also, particularly floral, wherein by the use of effective contrasts he achieves startling results.

Another American artist, Mrs. Leslie Cotton, who has frequently exhibited at the Salon, is attracting tourists to the Knoedler galleries, particularly because of the intimate nature of her portraits, which include life size ones of Henry White, late American Ambassador at Paris, and Gen. Whitney.

The Walter Damrosch orchestra proved a sensational success and individual American artists continue to present programs at the principal salons such as the Salle Gaveau and the Salle Pleyel, the latter of which was not able to provide sufficient accommodations when Guy Maier and Lee Pattison, New Yorkers who entertained the American Army while it was in France, presented a popular classical program.

Incidentally the war services of Americans with the French army is the daily subject of announcements in the Journal Omcial, the latest being the award of medals to Mme. Ethel Caperhart Ettlinger, daughter of Gen. Caperhart of civil war fame, who nursed the poilus and provided a hospital from her own funds. The Medaille Reconnaissance was granted to the Misses Harriet and Mary Dingman, directors of foyer work for the American Y. W. C. A., who arrived in Paris on their way to Switzerland to attend the International Suffrage Convention.

The objective of the tourists, however, continues to be the battlefields, and the automobiles of the various agencies are filled each morning long before the hour for departure, while the French railroads admit traffic is increasing to such an extent as a result of the influx of the Americans that special trains to the battlefields are being considered.

Scot Trade Advisor To Aid The Germans

Mr. J. W. McKay, who was until recently secretary of the United Kingdom Business Men's Federation, has been appointed trade adviser to the German Embassy in London.

Mr. McKay told a Daily Chronicle representative that, owing to the war, trade relations with Germany were resumed under entirely new conditions, and the German Government approached him for advice with regard to the placing of German interests in Great Britain. A large number of English merchants have in Germany been energetically seeking sole agencies, and many others have written.

"The principal of the commercial department at the Embassy," said Mr. McKay, "is to facilitate as far as possible trade each way between the two countries."

Mr. McKay added that Germany was striving hard to put herself right again, and it would be impossible for her to pay anything in the way of indemnity unless there was a steady development of her export trade.

American Mails Being Speeded Up In Orient And In United States

Army Transport Takes Next Lot Of Letters Across Pacific From Shanghai; New Airplane Routes Pass From Experimental Stage To Success

While mail service in the United States is being speeded up by the use of airplanes, Mr. E. H. Everett, American Postal Agent in Shanghai, is taking every possible step to bring about similar results for residents of the Far East. Army transports, freighters, liners and every available craft plying the Pacific is being closely watched in order that mails from the Orient may reach their destination in the United States at the earliest possible date.

In pursuance of this policy Mr. Everett is despatching the next mail to America on the United States Army Transport Great Northern which is due in San Francisco about August 20. Mails for this vessel will be closed at 5 p.m. on Friday, August 6, according to present plans. If there is any change in the closing time the newspapers will be notified in ample time and Mr. Everett has asked that the public refer to the press or to the bulletin board rather than use the telephone.

'The Mail Box' announcement printed in the upper right hand corner of page one of THE CHINA PRESS daily also tells the time of the arrival and departure of mails.

NEXT MAIL DUE AUGUST 8

The next mail due in Shanghai from America will arrive on the Africa Maru, which left Vancouver on July 13 and is due here August 8. There will also be mail on the Nanking, which left San Francisco July 14 and is due to arrive on August 9.

The Empress of Russia sailed from Vancouver on July 20 and is due here August 13. In view of the Reuter's London telegram, printed in THE CHINA PRESS yesterday morning, it is expected that she will bring American mails.

Announcement of the departure for New York of three pathfinding airplanes that are to lay out an aerial mail route from the Atlantic to the Pacific was received with satisfaction here as it will mean a great saving in time for mails from Shanghai to Chicago and New York. According to a report of the Postmaster General it will be possible to carry mails from coast to coast in 35 hours as against 90 hours required by train.

AIR SERVICE SUCCESS

Air mail service in the United States has passed the experimental stage, the Postmaster General declares, and has been proved to be practical. When the first three routes had been established last year between New York and Washington, New York and Cleveland and Chicago, eight airplanes were put in service. Each machine has a carrying capacity of 16,000 letters and the eight planes fly an aggregate of 1,906 miles daily, carrying at the rate of more than 30,000,000 letters a year. On each of the three routes the mail is advanced 16 hours in each direction and in the case of mail destined for delivery on the Pacific Coast 24 hours are saved.

Cost of operation of the Air Mail Service during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919, was $166,402.52 and the revenue from the sale of special rate airplane stamps was $194,831.50.

ECONOMY FORESEEN

With the creation of large weight-carrying planes for the mail service, consideration was given to the reduction of the air-mail postage rate to the regular rate for all first class mail matter, as with the large planes the saving in car distribution space on the railroads will more than pay the cost of the air mail service.

This economy in letter transportation for long distances by airplanes over the cost of disturbing mail on the trains is made possible by the fast transit by air which enables the distribution of letters in the post offices instead of on the trains.

Letter From France Tells Of Work Of 'Y' Secretaries

Letters that the Y.M.C.A. here are receiving from France tell of large achievements that have been accomplished by Y.M.C.A. secretaries among the Chinese workers, many of whom still remain in the area where the war was fought.

Two letters that deal with this phase of Y.M.C.A. work will be found of interest. They are as follows:

We have just received from Mr. M. H. Wheeler, our head secretary in France for work among Chinese laborers, the enclosed report of a conference in May. We have still 34 Chinese secretaries working among the 20,000 laborers who are being retained there. Perhaps this letter, or some parts of it, would be interesting to your readers.

H. A. Wilbur,
Acting Senior Secretary.

Mr. Wheeler's letter follows:

BARBIZON CONFERENCE

May 10-13, 1920.

"We took up the question of a general conference for all of the secretaries of the Chinese Department this year with some reluctance, but now as we look back over the past delightful days together at Barbizon, we wonder how there could have been any doubt in our minds as to the advisability of undertaking it.

"Our first difficulty was to discover a site that would be easily accessible and at the same time would afford those natural features so essential to a good conference atmosphere. Early in April we visited Saint Germain and other places to the north, west and south of Paris; also Versailles where we held the conference just a year before at the Hotel Suisse and took lunch at that hotel and were surprised at the cost of everything, where we paid twenty-one francs for board and room a year ago, now we had to pay almost as much for a single meal. Mr. Sautter, French head of the Foyer du Soldat, suggested that Barbizon in the Forest of Fontainebleau would be a more suitable place. One visit there decided us and we engaged rooms and meals for forty delegates at the Hotel de la Foret, one of the most delightful spots we have yet visited in France.

HEAR REPORTS

"The program began on Monday night, May 10 with devotional exercises and was followed by an address by Mr. Liao, the Chinese Consul General. After breakfast there was a devotional session and then began the reports and discussions relative to the work in the different centers. A platform meeting at eleven-thirty and another strong address in the evening completed the program which was substantially the same for the two following days.

"There were 27 centers represented by 34 secretaries. One was from the Vosges Mountains in Alsace where the laborers live like rabbits in the old German dug-outs where, "day and night are just the same." The secretary has to walk four hours a day in visiting his different groups of men. The laborers go here and there picking up the broken bones and scattered skeletons of Blue Devils, Yankees, Tommies and Germans. They walk long hours up and down the steep mountainside in pursuit of their calling.

"Others reported the men being hurried away at an hour's notice to distant port cities to be used in breaking the Dockers strike. One of the latter group is quartered on a ship to be out reach of the violence of the strikers. Hundreds of Chinese were rushed to Paris to take the places of gas workers on strike.

REPORT PROGRESS

"Most of the secretaries had little but the most encouraging progress to report, the most marked of which was in the educational program. Thousands of laborers are enrolled in classes meeting in the Y Huts evenings after work hours and many continue far into the night after the class period practicing writing of Chinese characters. Ignorant coolies when they arrived in France are now clean, well-dressed and self-respecting, able to read and to write their own letters home.

"On the third afternoon Dr. Wellington Koo, head of the Chinese Peace Delegation, gave a reception to all of the secretaries at the delegation in Paris. There were also present two important officials just arrived from China; Mr. Lin, Minister of Justice and Mr. Yuan, Vice-Minister of Education, who spoke to the secretaries emphasising the significance of the Association movement in China. The former was at one time president of the Board of Directors of the Foochow Y.M.C.A. and the latter has been an active member of the Association. Dr. Koo, who has shown a deep interest in this work of the Y.M.C.A. for the laborers, paid a splendid tribute to the two hundred secretaries who have been engaged in it.

"In the evening we had the secretaries at our house for the final session which was informal and almost entirely social. A very pleasant ending and every one voted it an exceedingly successful conference. We were very fortunate in having the following speakers in addition to those already mentioned: Messrs. Gordon L. Berry, Associate General Secretary for the Y.M.C.A. in Europe; A. H. Hanson, Secretary General Adjoint of the Foyer du Soldat and H. M. d'Aubigne, American Representative of the McCall Mission in France, who gave excellent addresses.

"MARK H. WHEELER."

Ireland Primate Given Warning "Time Is Set"

Cardinal Logue, Archbishop of Armagh and Primate of Ireland, while delivering an address recently at Maynooth College, Dublin, announced that he had "received a warning that his time is set." The aged Cardinal declared he was grateful for this warning because it gave him time to prepare. He added: "I have always tried to do what I could for my country and have never consciously said a word to offend anybody, no matter what his religion or politics. If I come to a sudden end there will be no justification for those responsible." No indication of the source of the warning was given by the Cardinal.

War Notes From Chinese Papers

The Tientsin conference has suggested a list of cabinet ministers, which was handed to Chin Yun-peng on Monday to be brought to Peking and submitted to the president for decision.

* * *

Generals Tsao and Chang will not go to Peking before all the terms demanded by the Tientsin Conference are complied with. President Hsu has again telegraphically urged them to come.

* * *

The Tientsin conference will submit a second list of proscribed persons and will also demand the punishment of Generals Wang I-tang and Wu Kwang-hsin. President Hsu will issue a self-abnegation mandate in which he will try to persuade all parties to cease their quarrel.

* * *

No one has been appointed Tuchun of Hunan after Wu Kwang-hsin was cashiered. The President's intention is said to confirm Tan Yen-kai as such if the unification of the North and South can be quickly attained. Otherwise the post will be given Wu Pei-fu.

The division of the country into four military areas is not enthusiastically approved by the tuchuns; so it will not likely be carried into practice.

It was originally intended to seal up the Chen Chih College established by Little Hsu, but for the intervention by some person. However, over 300 rifles for drilling purpose have been seized and confiscated by the troops.

From a foreign source, the British Government is reported to recognise the Japanese as only in temporary possession of the rights and privileges in Shantung and temporary occupation of Tsingtao during the European War and to reopen the question for careful consideration when the Alliance is to be continued.

The question of borrowing a big loan has revived. The Banking Consortium will make a careful study of the problem in connection with the disbandment of troops which they wish to know for certain whether it is possible to carry out successfully or not.

Murderers! Cry Germans, As They Vote To Overthrow Militarists

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, July 31.—The notorious General von Gallwitz created an uproar in the Reichstag by glorifying the old army during the debate on abolishing compulsory military service.

The Socialists stormily intervened shouting:

"You murderers have the lives of millions on your consciences."

When the uproar had been quelled General von Gallwitz resumed his eulogies. The whole of the Right then quitted the hall.

Man Hides Money in Coffee Pot, Then Forgets

CLEVELAND, O.—Eugene Pars reported to police Monday night that $54 of his savings which he had hidden in a coffee pots in his restaurant, had been stolen. Last night he assured the officers that it was all a mistake.

He explained the money was in a small coffee bag inside the pot. Forgetting the money, he said he placed the pot on a steaming radiator.

The coffee boiled over and with it the $54. "I've found the bag and the money behind the radiator," he said.

ELWELL RUM RING BARED BY SHEVLIN

Wealthy And Prominent Men Named In Plot Headed By Murder Victim

INDICTMENTS PREDICTED

Evidence Indicates Graft Pervaded Gang And Conspirators Swindled Each Other

New York, July 2.—James S. Shevlin, the Federal Prohibition Enforcement Agent, yesterday said he had discovered proof that Joseph Bowne Elwell, who was murdered on June 11, was in the "bootlegging" business on a considerable scale.

"We will have more witnesses tomorrow and will go to the bottom of this matter," he said. "A number of prominent men apparently have been supplied with liquor by the bootlegging system in which Elwell took part."

William Barnes, Elwell's former secretary, appeared at Mr. Shevlin's office, but Mr. Shevlin refused to say whether he had been examined. Mr. Barnes previously had denied having any knowledge of whisky operations by Elwell.

Mr. Shevlin said the evidence indicated a widespread conspiracy for the secret delivery of liquor to friends of the murdered man. One cellar to which the liquor was supplied was that of an organisation of which many prominent business and sporting men were members.

None of the deals involved sums as great as $12,700, the size of a check reported to have been drawn by Elwell just before his death to cover a big whisky operation. The total of the whisky sales described, however, reached a considerable figure. There was no evidence that the Elwell murder was connected with this criminal traffic.

SOURCE OF LIQUOR

While Lexington, Ky., and the Monongahela Valley in Pennsylvania have been mentioned as the sources from which the whisky was smuggled into this city, Mr. Shevlin said he had not been able to trace the liquor to the warehouses or stills. When the whole system is traced from source to consumer, the Federal agents believe they will uncover one of the most extensive bootlegging organisations which has been exposed since the prohibition amendment went into effort.

Mr. Shevlin said several men would be summoned to complete the account of Elwell's transactions in contraband liquor and that the whole matter would then be placed before the Grand Jury. Several indictments were predicted.

All the persons who had been questioned previous to yesterday had denied knowledge of these transactions. Yesterday, however, one man gave what apparently was a frank statement of his connection with Elwell and others in supplying whisky to well-to-do men and to one or more organisations.

CONSPIRATORS SWINDLED

This man said he could not conceive how Elwell's whisky deal could have led to the murder. His story, however, indicated that some of those involved were swindling others. The minor agents in the plot were evidently grafting extensively from the principals, while the principals were cheating the men or groups of men who furnished the money.

Knowledge of Elwell's unlawful transactions, possessed by several men, might have resulted in an attempt at blackmail, it was pointed out, with the murder following a refusal by Elwell to be bled.

Assistant District Attorney Dooling, who has been investigating other indications that the motive for the murder was money, has been more encouraged from day to day in the belief that the murderer ultimately would be caught.

The witness who revealed the whisky conspiracy at the Custom House had been questioned previously at great length in the District Attorney's office, but had failed to furnish any information regarding the Elwell whisky ring. He submitted a large variety of theories which pointed in every direction except toward a fight over smuggling. He thought it was

Mystery "Woman In Black" And Slain New York Turfman

Miss Elly Hope Anderson, of Minneapolis, who has been called the "woman in black" in the Elwell mystery which has stirred New York. Miss Anderson was the supper partner at the Ritz-Carlton roof of Victor von Schlegell, divorced husband of Viola Kraus, the night Elwell was slain. Several tables away on the same evening were Elwell, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lewisohn and Miss Kraus. District-Attorney Swann, of New York, it is said, will ask Miss Anderson to go to New York to tell all she knows. The mysterious shooting of Joseph Bowne Elwell, wealthy turfman and whist expert, two weeks ago, has completely baffled the police. Elwell was found dying in the reception room of his home, a bullet wound in his head. No revolver was found. Above is a new photograph of the slain man made at Palm Beach.

an unwritten law or a sneakthief who fired when caught in the act, and told of many romances with stormy and tearful endings in which he said Elwell had been involved.

'MISS WILSON' SUMMONED

Mr. Swann denied last Monday that he had ever heard Elwell was "bootlegging." When informed that the "bootlegging" involved an organisation of which many prominent men were members he refused to say whether he would investigate the subject.

Mr. Swann announced that he had summoned "Miss Wilson" to his office to be questioned today regarding a cable despatch to The New York American in which it was stated that "Miss Wilson" on one occasion had threatened Elwell's life.

"She told us of having spats with Elwell," said Mr. Swann, "but they were nothing serious. If she ever made the threat to kill him, that would be a different matter."

"Miss Wilson" is the young woman who had boudoir garments in the Elwell home. She assumed the fictitious name in the presence of Elwell's employes. The name, however, apparently was a standard one for Elwell's intimates because he is known to have introduced another woman companion in Kentucky under the same title. So there is much speculation as to the identity of the "Miss Wilson" summoned to the Criminal Court Building.

Mr. Swann was asked why he asked the young woman to the Criminal Court Building instead of seeing her elsewhere, as heretofore.

"The Criminal Court Building is good enough," he replied.

"What is her real name?"

"Well," he replied, "she was known to Elwell's employes and has been known generally in this case as 'Miss Wilson.'"

NEW WILL IS REPORTED

Mr. Swann said he had no idea of sending a member of his staff to Ireland to interview Annie Kane, the housekeeper who preceded Mrs. Marie Larsen at the Elwell house. Friends of Mrs. Elwell were interested in the former housekeeper's account of a new will leaving Elwell's fortune to his son. This will was made in 1916. The earlier one leaves his fortune to Elwell's parents, cutting off the wife and son. The former housekeeper's statement that this will also left a sum of money to Barnes corroborated a statement made by the secretary two or three days after the murder.

Far from being bankrupt, as reported to Mr. Swann the estate probably will be considerable, according to W. Gibbs Whalley, attorney for Elwell's widow. The inventory so far, it was said, showthat Elwell had property of a net value of at least $75,000. A search of real estate titles is expected to show that he owned some valuable land in addition. It is reported also that Elwell had a large share in a trust fund of $300,000, but it has not yet been disclosed how the disposition of this on his death is limited.

Campaign Will Cost Fortune

Twenty-Five Million Dollars Estimated As To Be Expended Prior To Election

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Twenty-five million dollars is the estimate of the amount of money that probably will be spent by all political parties in order to elect the next president of the United States.

This figure, considered an under estimate at that, embraces every class of expenditure, not only on the national but in the state committees. The writer is assured by the persons who are likely to be in on the financing of the national campaign, that, in all probability, the national committees themselves will not spend more than a few million dollars each. Indeed, it is questionable whether the democrats or republicans will show on their official records more than $5,000,000 each.

But throughout the union, in the states, it is fully expected that many millions of dollars will be spent and there is no real way to get at the facts because the federal government has no jurisdiction over state elections. It is in making the canvass for state officers that money is spent for the top of the national ticket and for congressional candidates.

The truth is that the present investigation of expenditures in the primary campaign is making the seasoned financiers of political campaigns smile. A mere half million dollars is nothing compared to the big sums that will be spent.

Preparations are being made for the most lavish expenditure in the history of American political campaigns. The investigation thus far shows that large sums of money are spent for publicity and advertising but that fabulous amounts are put in the hands of "party workers." Some states have laws which limit the expenditures in state campaigns. But the laxity of the more populous state where the big electoral votes come from enables the politician to lay his plans so that he does not come under the jurisdiction of the federal government.

But if anybody supposes that all this is going to happen without some spectacular intervention such as came in the primary campaigns, he is very much mistaken. The Senate committee may not have made up its mind as to what it will do during the summer, but it seems certain that as soon as the conventions have chosen their men, and an extra session of Congress is called, there will be pressure to continue the investigation. Some republicans have said that it would furnish a splendid opportunity to investigate the democratic nominee, inasmuch as too much publicity has already been given the financial efforts of the various republican aspirants for the presidential nomination. But it is hardly likely that the democrats who are in possession of another investigating branch of the government would let the matter rest there.

MAY HAVE TACIT TRUCE

What appears doubtful at the present moment is whether the two oldline parties will have a tacit truce to drop investigating and spend all they can to elect their respective candidates or whether they will continue to fight each other through the publicity and insinuations of campaign investigations, in which case the chances of a double-barreled investigation conducted by the Senate committee, on the one hand, and department of justice, on the other hand, can be said to be good. Much will depend upon the choice of each national convention. Maybe if the friends of Senator Johnson are disappointed and think money beat them, they will insist on pursuing the trail, no matter what effect it has on republican chances. On the other hand, Chairman Hays and others have repeatedly hinted at large sums of money gathered by the democrats for the coming campaign and the opportunity will not be lost to keep the controversy in the public prints in the hope of influencing the electorate next autumn. The investigations may check expenditures for illegitimate or doubtful purposes, but the high cost of campaigning is fully realised at both democratic and republican headquarters, so that no matter how conservative the leaders may try to be, they probably will find in the end that all combined will have spent more to elect a president of the United States in 1920 than in any other year in the history of American politics.

SHENSI TUCHUN QUITS ANFUITES AS CLUB FALLS

Joins Chihilians But Fights New Colleagues And Stops Fengtien Troops

(China Press Correspondence)

Sianfu, Shensi, July 24.—The great political upheaval in Peking has had its effect upon this province in such a way that one wonders if it really can be so. The Tuchun, Chen Shu-fang, a former strong Anfu man, is said to have left that club's fold and joined the Chihil clique! Why this sudden departure, one can nearly conjecture. But then this cognitive fact seems to conflict with present deeds, if true. Thousands of soldiers are rushing to the east to a city in Honan called Lingpaohsien to intercept the Fengtien troops from returning to Shensi after having left for the theater of war around Peking.

HIRES THOUSANDS

It is said around here that the Tuchun has hired several thousands of tufei from both Honan and Shensi to fight Hsu Lan-chow. Now, if our Governor has joined the Chihli Party why should he fear Hsu, who is also of the same party? We know that one of Shensi's brigand leaders, Fan Lao-erh, left with the Fengtien troops to go as far as Kuanintang the railway terminus. A good number of his men got on the rampage and the Fengtien Tuchun had to help him to round them up and then execute 90 of them. It is said that the civil governor has left with all of his troops for the east with the intention of hindering Hsu! We are anxiously awaiting the outcome of all these peculiar maneuvers.

BRIGAND ON PAYROLL

Keo Chien, the real big brigand chief of Shensi, has now been placed on the Tuchun's army payroll with the title of commander-in-chief of the garrisons of West Shensi! If Keo prove loyal to Chen, then the latter has a very good fighter on his side. Keo has been a very strict disciplinarian the last year or so and his men have been fairly obedient to his commands. Before the Fengtien troops left here he was on their side against Chen. How quickly the tables turn! One must admire Chen's ability as a strategist, though. He is a very clever military man, and would be a valuable man to any side as far as strategy is concerned.

Shensi seems to be quiet just now. There have been a few skirmishes in Sanshuihsien between the Kansu troops and some brigands, not Keo's. The Kansuites do not want them to enter Kansu territory and therefore fight them on Shensi soil. A few months ago, when the Kansu troops fought a combined force of Yunnan and "long pig tail" brigands, the former lost a very fine major, who was a friend to foreigners in Kansu. He was captured, flayed, burnt, and had his heart pulled out, and one leg cut off. He was so brave that the 1,500 Kansu men put to flight 10,000 of the others. The writer saw a fine big German gun which the Kansu men captured from the Yunnan soldiers in that battle.

MAILS ARE TIED UP

Mails from the east are tied up somewhere in Honan. THE CHINA PRESS for July 14, came last evening, when it should have been here the 19th. No mails are coming in and we do not know if our mails for the east get through or not.

The summer, so far, has been very dry and foodstuffs and fodder have soared skyward in price. A little rain came but did not amount to much.

France's Recovery Reaches High Mark

Nearly 90 Percent Of Factories Again Working In The Devastated Areas

Paris, July 1.—On the eve of the Spa conference the French Government has issued official figures showing the extent to which work has been resumed in industries and factories of the invaded districts. In doing so the Government seeks to serve two objects, first, to show what the French people, despite material devastation and the complete destruction of much of the industrial fabric in these districts, have done by hard work and spiritual determination, and secondly, to afford a contrast to any whining appeals the Germans may make as to the possibilities of payment owing to their present economic situation.

The French argument is: "Look what we have done in the district in which the Germans systematically destroyed every piece of machinery and every factory. In Germany nothing was destroyed. They have no excuse for shirking their engagements in the matter of payment."

The French figures do indeed show wonderful progress. In the industrial Department of the Muerthe and Moselle 80 percent of the pre-war factories and establishments are again at work. In the Ardennes and Nord the proportion is 78 percent, and in the Lille district it has risen as high as 84 percent. In all departments out of 3,700 industrial establishments 2,810, or more than 75 percent, were again partially or completely at work on June 1 this year.

The greatest drawback to full recovery has been a shortage of labor owing to the enormous migration caused by the war from these districts and also the loss of life among the male population in the war. Of 706,323 workers employed before the war, only 40 per cent (that is 284,785, have returned. With each month, however, as buildings are being erected and machinery replaced, more and more are returning and a rate of recovery is shown by these figures that a year ago would have seemed impossible. Factories then were employing only 9.7 percent of their workmen. By January this year the figure had risen to 28.8 percent and by the first of April to 35.2 percent.

In the Nord Department the figure of those employed has risen to over 47 percent, and in the textile industries of the Lille district it is even much higher. There, though the machinery was destroyed or removed by the invaders with the avowed intention of ruining the district as a rival to Germany, buildings were not destroyed by shellfire and it has been possible to get to work more quickly. In Lille itself the proportion of those employed in the textile industry has risen to 82.8 percent of what it was before the war. In the woolen industry at Roubaix more than 90 percent of the workers are back again at their mills.

These figures, which take into consideration only the establishments employing more than twenty persons each, the French say, are in themselves a complete refutation of any charges that France is not working for her own restoration, and they serve equaly effectively as a contrast to Germany, which suffered no invasion and destruction such as she inflicted on France."

Heroes With A Job

(New York Times)

Some Canadian soldiers, passing through England, left with the press a literary judgment. It was not pronounced ex cathedra, but rather ex trench, ex canteen. It had to do with the books sent to them to read during the war. A lot of these, they said, ought at once to be scrapped" in the interest of English literature. Among the authors to be thrown on the junk heap they mentioned "particularly Dickens and Thackeray." The reason was that the heroes of those novelists "can't earn their own livelihood, and spend nearly all their time hanging after some old woman to get her money." Narrowly inspecting Thackeray, they were able to discover in his books only two heroes "who have some sort of a job."

Most devotees of Thackeray would undertake to name more than two of his heroes whose soul was not above work, but that is not the present point. Here is a new test, a new behest, laid upon romance. In a workaday world it must have workaday heroes. No more curled darlings of the drawing room, if you please. Modern virility can but loathe the dawdlers of Disraeli, "simpering in the gilded palaces of the rich." Not grace or wit or cultivation or the making of languishing eyes will captivate the fastidious fair ones of this age and day. The heroes of whom they dream and for whom they wait must be men with an adequate job.

Americans may take pride in believing that their own writers are rising to this high demand. We have this on no less authority than that of St. John Ervine. During a recent tour in the United States he was led to dip rather deeply into our current fiction—mostly, to be sure, in the periodicals. Mr. Ervine somewhat untactfully contesses that this reading was forced upon him to fill up the tedium of railway travel. Otherwise, he might have missed it. Never mind this; the important fact is that he found American love stories nobly meeting the standard of the Canadian soldiers. The usual hero is a business man. His "job," of course, must be immense. He must be grappling with large affairs, running a great manufacturing plant or a railroad; founding new industries, developing unheard-of efficiency, breaking a strike or else heading one. And the comforting truth implied is that a man so equipped and so working is the true hero of the present, perfectly irresistible to the heroine of today. Where her mother or grandmother thought to find a hero, she sees only a villain. We mean the man who dabbles in letters and art, who has exquisite manners and practices all the delicate refinements of life. Him, Mr. Ervine bears clear testimony, the ladies of the living present think of as only a ridiculous or a dangerous figure. Not for a moment do their thoughts lightly turn to such a shameless creature without a job. Their truest raptures, their deepest enthusiasms, the heroines of American fiction reserve for Big Business!

IS THIS YOUR TROUBLE?

A little trouble, quite easily remedied if dealt with in the right way, is the cause of much of the irritability, gloom, and that general sense of "out-of-sorts-ness" which habitually afflict many people. The trouble is constipation; its remedy is Pinkettes, the little laxatives, which, whilst wonderfully efficient, neither gripe nor purge.

If you are constipated, bilious, liverish, have sick headaches, coated tongue, foul breath, try Pinkettes TONIGHT, and see how much better you will feel tomorrow morning. Pinkettes also prevent d'arrhoea and dysentery and relieve Piles. Obtainable from dealers, or at 60 cents the vial, post free, from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 96 Szechuen Road, Shanghai.

Entente To Study German Economics

Berlin, June 20.—The Reparations Commission has decided to appoint a special information committee to make a study on the ground of Germany's economic condition. France, Great Britain, Italy and Belgium will have one member each, and negotiations are said to be in progress with Washington as to whether the United States will be represented.

Each member will specialise in one branch of study. The French delegate will be responsible for the industrial situation, the British for banks, credit and financial resources, the Italian for transportation facilities. If America decides to participate, its representative will report on a general economic policy.

This move is greeted here as evidence that the Entente finally recognises the need of more precise information on the German economic situation. Prof. Hasuenin already has been chosen as the French representative.

POTTS AND ROBERTS WIN HONG DOUBLES TOURNEY; DEFEAT MITSUI ENTRANTS

Tanaka And Nakajima Fall Before Heady, Steady Play Of Victors, In Straight Sets—Big Gallery Sees Classic On French Club Courts

By Dudley Burrows

Messrs. W. S. A. Pott and W. P. Roberts, representing St. John's University, Jessfield, in the Hong doubles lawn tennis tournament, will have their names engraved on Shanghai's two beautiful Hong tournament cups as the champions for 1920, by virtue of their win, in straight sets yesterday afternoon, over Messrs. J. Tanaka and S. Nakajima, representing Mitsui Bussan Kaisha.

The victory was a decisive one, the scores being 6-2, 6-4, 6-0. The victors finished up the match at a fine burst of speed, taking a love game from the service of Mr. Nakajima, who, unfortunately for his teammate, did not measure up, at any stage of the game, to the tennis-playing ability of any of the other three contestants.

Mr. Nakajima played brilliant tennis at times; but the strategy of the opposition, who centered their offensive play upon this smaller and less-experienced adversary, completely smothered him. Mr. Tanaka rarely had an opportunity to display the splendid grade of tennis of which he is capable.

A STRANGE "STUNT"

Indeed, it is a wonder to the writer—left-handed himself—how Mr. Nakajima manages to make as good a showing on the courts as he does. This player, when serving, uses a left-hand chop service. If his first ball is good he drops the ball remaining in his hand and switches his racket to the right-hand in anticipation of the return. Although he performs this remarkable "stunt" with great rapidity, he is often caught "between hands," one might say, by the volley-back, causing him to strike badly or miss altogether.

A larger and even more picturesque crowd than that which assembled at the Cercle Sportif Francaise on Monday, when rain caused a postponement of the match, was on hand yesterday, braving the heat to the finish lest they might miss some of the magnificent tennis exhibited throughout the match by Messrs. Pott and Roberts.

ONE FOR ST. JOHN'S

The first game opened with Mr. Roberts serving to Mr. Nakajima, who lobbed two returns outside the lines. Mr. Tanaka then scored two placement drives through the center court and brought the score to 30-all; but Mr. Nakajima again ousted. A double fault brought the score to deuce, following which a placement by Roberts and another "out" by Nakajima gave the game to St. John's.

The St. John's pair took Mr. Nakajima's service, but the Japanese team rallied against Mr. Pott and took a deuce game—their first.

Thanks to two "nets" and an "out" by Mr. Nakajima and a "net" by Mr. Tanaka, the latter's first service game went to the opposition by the "love" route. Roberts then won his second service game, bringing the score to St. John's 4, Mitsui 1.

Mr. Nakajima here pulled himself together and, by some brilliant tennis which was loudly applauded, took a love game from the opposition on his service. Potts retaliated, following which came a fast eight-point deuce game that finally went to the St. John's team—and, with it, the first set.

THE SECOND SET

Messrs. Pott and Roberts took the first two games of the second set in rapid order, the Japanese team securing only one point in the first and two points in the second. The third game, with Potts serving, went to Tanaka and Nakajima, principally by virtue of two double faults on the part of the server. This was a long twelve-point game, full of brilliant rallies.

The Japanese also took the fourth game. Mr. Tanaka make a series of brilliant drives down the outside lines for points; but Mr. Roberts came back with a love-game on his service. The St. John's play at this point was centered almost entirely against Mr. Nakajima, who wavered in the face of a blistering attack, but fought back gamely. He lost his own service, but recovered and took the seventh game from Mr. Pott's service almost unaided. The St. John's men were keeping the ball away from Mr. Tanaka as much as possible.

WORKED TOO HARD

Tanaka lost his service, bringing the score to 5-3 St. John's, following which the Japanese fell upon Roberts and took his game. The effort was too much, however, and, with Nakajima serving, the opposition ran out the set, 6-4.

The third and deciding set found Mr. Nakajima wearied and badly winded. The consequence was when Messrs. Pott and Roberts began their "great offensive" against this plucky little opponent, that he could do nothing more than his tired best; which wasn't enough to stop the opposition from running out the match in straight games.

All in all it was a wily match on one side and a plucky one on the other, rather than a truly brilliant exhibition of the game. This, however, is not meant as an aspersion on the play of the winners, who showed a marked ability to pull themselves together when occasion demanded; and who played a steady, uniformly excellent game throughout the match.

Lawn Bowls

(BY "SKIP")

The Junior Golf Club put up quite a good show on Sunday against the Lawn Bowls Club. The difference of only 11 points was quite satisfactory from the northerners point of view.

The Yangtszepoo and Recreation Club game had to be called off on account of the sudden death of a member of the former club. The deceased gentleman (Mr. A. M. Brown) was not a prominent lawn bowler, but was quite a good tennis player; in fact was playing as late as last Friday evening.

The Pairs Semi-final, on Monday evening, was a match worth going out of your way to see. The players were Geo. McMurdo and R. C. Aitkenhead, against G. L. Campbell and J. Ross Young.

All of the four were at the top of their form, and that's saying something. With the green in splendid condition, spectators were treated to as fine an exhibition of trundling as could be wished for.

Several heads were well worth a snapshot and at the half way house (10th end) the score was only eight all. The fine play was kept up to the finish, when the result was Aitkenhead and McMurdo 19, Campbell and Ross Young 13.

The winners now meet Ferrier and Taylor in the final.

In a letter received this week I hear that matches have been fixed up at Glasgow, Edinburgh, and another town on the west coast of Scotland between our representatives and a rink representing the aforementioned towns.

The Shanghai four consists of O. Crewe Read, G. H. Phillips, A. Eek, and A. A. Malcolm.

The result of the games, with further particulars as to the standing of the opponents, is expected shortly. The games should have been played in June.

What has become of J. J. S., perhaps he has more than he can handle in the quiet (?) country of his birth than worrying about the "Scotch!"

LEWIS-BASHAM BOUT ANALYSED

"Game Chicken" Describes Contest In London For Welterweight Crown

The following description of the Ted Lewis—Johnny Basham boxing match, for the welterweight championship of Europe, which was won by Lewis in eight rounds, is culled from a recent issue of The Athletic News (Manchester) for which it was prepared by "The Game Chicken."

"June 14.—There were veterans in the sport of boxing at the ringside at Olympia the other night familiar with the none too pleasant sight of one boxer hammering a helpless opponent, and they howled loudly for Eugene Corri to stop the bout between Basham and Ted Lewis.

"This contest for the European welter-weight championsh'p, the subject of much-heated debate beforehand, has resulted in a remarkable diversity of opinion concerning the action of Danny Davies, the principal second of Basham, intervening during the interval following the ninth round, and so giving the contest to Lewis.

REFEREE'S DUTY

"It is the referee's duty to stop a bout if one man is in a helpless plight and is only carrying on to receive further and unnecessary punishment, and really the climax should not be reached where the seconds have to intervene. It often happens that a boxer will get facial punishment and look in a very poor way, but yet be very strong. His appearance cannot always be taken as an indication of his physical well-being, so that the presiding official has to exercise careful judgment and use discretion in such cases.

AGREES WITH CORRI

"This was exactly the position of Basham, and I am quite in agreement with Mr. Corri when he declares he was not justified in calling a halt. That Basham was strong the latter gave ample evidence of, but he was losing so much blood that he must soon have been in a weak condition.

"However, although the official attitude was no doubt correct, one hoped that something would happen to prevent Basham from having an excess of the terrible punishment Lewis was lading out. The manner in which the Welshman withstood it all was in a way magnificent and glowing testimony to his splendid condition.

"Lewis showed form worthy of a world's champion, and the recovery of his old title from Jack Britton should be within his grasp. Mr. Charley Harvey told me he had never been seen to better advantage in the States. Naturally Basham wants a return match, and Lewis is perfectly willing, this being a possibility for the autumn."

America's New Tennis Marvel And England's Real Opinion Of Him

BY HERBERT L. BOURKE
(England's Lawn Tennis Authority)
(The New York World)

London, June 24.—"Big Bill" succeeded where "Little Bill" failed when William T. Tilden 2d defeated J. C. Parke, the conqueror of W. M. Johnston, your champion, in the third round of the world's championship lawn tennis tournament at Wimbledon today by a score of 6-3, 6-2, 6-4.

King George, Queen Mary, the Duke of York, Prince Henry and Princess Mary looked on, with just about the biggest crowd which has ever gathered about these famous courts, and the King, as well as everybody else, showed every sign of keen interest in this great and vital match.

The scene was extremely brilliant, the weather glorious. Would Tilden avenge Johnston? That was the great question, and before the match it was generally even money, although a few laid slight odds on Tilden.

Great and grim were the opening stages, and in the scorching sun Parke and his opponent both wore headgear. Tilden mainly contented himself in the first set by playing Parke at his own game from back court. His low drives were beautifully done, but occasionally he was erratic and netted.

All games went with service up to three-two, and then Tilden broke through, collaring Parke's service and making brilliant angular drives. He seemed to possess supreme confidence. Slashing service helped him to win the seventh game, and he was magnificent all around in winning the set at 6-3.

I liked Tilden's fine concentration. His happy-go-lucky manner of previous games was missing. He was out for serious business and America's honor and playing with fine tenacity. So far it was revealed that the Parke-Johnston match was a falsification of form.

In the second set Tilden was vastly superior. He volleyed more and brilliantly, and against his fine game Parke's stroke weakened, and the Irishman frequently found the net.

Parke won the first game, Tilden the next three, and Parke the fifth. Then there was only one man in it, and that man was Tilden. I never thought he could play so safely and so brilliantly at the same time. Parke relies so largely on a passing stroke that he found Tilden's long reach at the net a menace. Despite the dipping tendency of Parke's drives, Tilden thwarted him with great, low volleys played with consummate ease and finely placed at angles to beat his advancing opponent.

PARKE FOUGHT WELL

Parke fought gallantly in the third set and for some time Tilden's strength of service was his main advantage. The former also served well at this stage, placing on the middle line, and the games went to three all.

Tilden stayed back in the next game and in ground strokes more than held his own by cleverly finding the corners. He took the game and led at four-three, Parke being unlucky with his final shot, which beat his man and dropped inches over the sideline.

Parke could do nothing with Tilden's service in the eighth game, and while he took the next and deferred the inevitable, the end came as he grappled with Tilden's final service by hitting the great delivery miles out of court.

All critics and leading players were loud in their praise of Tilden's great display. A former champion expressed the opinion that in a few years Tilden will be the greatest player of all time if he relinquishes a tendency toward ultra-flash moments which might at any time let his opponent in.

JAP COLLEGIANS ON LOCAL COURTS

Tennis Cracks From Keioh Play Against Local Men Today

The tennis players of the Keioh University, Japan are touring the principal towns of the East during their vacation and are present in Shanghai.

Mr. Nakamura, secretary of the Japanese Lawn Tennis Association, has made arrangements for a series of matches against the local clubs.

They meet the Shanghai Recreation Club on the latter's grounds at 5 p.m. today.

The competing couples are:

Keioh University.—Matsubara, Harada vs. S.R.C.—H. B. Ollerdessen, J. L. Wade.

Keioh University. — Odakiri, Kimura vs. S.R.C.—G. N. Manley, W. T. Manley.

Keioh University. — Komari, Hosotani vs. S.R.C.—T. W. R. Wilson, J. P. Hawes.

Here's 'Brain-Food' For Shanghai Umps

Hank Gowdy, the Braves' catcher, is credited with telling this on his return from France:

"During a lull in one of the 'quiet sectors' of France—spots where the opposing troops only go through the motions of warfare and give each other due notice when they are going to drop any shells—a ball game was started by American soldiers, and was watched with much interest by the Germans in the hostile trenches.

"In the seventh inning a German megaphoned across the open space, 'Better go under cover now—a general is coming, and we must shoot something!'

"And the doughboys, as though trained in a regular chorus, shouted back! 'All right—shoot the umpire!'"

FANS AGAIN DISAPPOINTED WHEN SHANGHAI "REGULARS" FAIL TO APPEAR FOR GAME

"China Press" Baseball Writer Arraigns Management And Players For Giving Public No Notice Of Cancellations—Suggests Numerous Reforms

By Viola Verclaire

The non-appearance of some of the so-called "Regular" baseball tossers caused a postponement of yesterday's game. It is said that some of the men knew there would be no game, but it was kept a secret from most of them, as well as from the fans.

It is discouraging to the players as well as to the fans to have things happen as they did yesterday, in regard to the game.

If those in charge cannot see that there are men enough out for a complete lineup, on days when games are scheduled to be played, it might be a wise plan to turn the park into a tennis court, as it only takes four men on a side for tennis, and in that case there might be a possibility of enough men showing for a match.

PLEA FOR JUSTICE

The base-ball lovers of Shanghai have been pretty faithful to the team, and when a game is announced by the press, to be played on a certain day, some kind of a game should be played.

The fans who go to the park with the expectation of seeing a game, and as in yesterday's case, sit around for half an hour watching a coolie pitch to the batters, and then go away in disgust: There is no reason in the world why things should be like this.

There are not only two teams but plenty of extra players to be had here in Shanghai; and, if a little "pep" is shown, there can be some good base-ball put up for the fans.

CALL THE COMMITTEE

It might be a good idea for the base-ball committee to have a meeting and see if things cannot be fixed up—some kind of laws, rules, fines or something to insure good base-ball for those who support the club.

A lot more could be said on this subject, but this will be enough for the time, we all hope for a little good to come of what has already been said.

The Turbulent Ukraine

Stamping Ground For Warriors For a Thousand Years

In the heart of the Ukrainian territory Poles and Ukrainians have been in battle with the Bolsheviki.

"What is the Ukraine? The Poles and the Lithuanians of a few centuries ago knew well this most turbulent section over which they attempted to rule, and Imperial Russia for a long time was greatly troubled by this very unruly part of her expansive domain. The Tartars and the Turks felt its proximity because of the many raids made upon them by the wild warriors of the steppes," says a writer to the National Geographic Society.

"The Ukraine, or little Russia, has had a troublesome career. The wild Scythians helped to feed ancient Greece and her colonies from these same endless steppes whence Germany expected to draw sustenance. A thousand years ago Kiev was already becoming an important place. When the Saxons still ruled England, in the long ago, the banks of the Dnieper were a meeting place for many races, drawn thither by commerce. Religious differences had not yet arisen, for all were worshippers of idols. Even then a Slav people were safely established here, sowing and reaping their harvests and sending their surplus grain down the river to the Black Sea.

"The name Ukraine means 'border-marches.' For centuries was the bulwark that protected Poland and Lithuania from the Tartars, Turks and other migrating Orientals. As a result it has had cruel taskmasters.

"The native population was largely Cossacks—a wild and unruly people at that time. They were not originally a tribe, but were men who went forth into the wilderness to find freedom. The vast steppes, covered with grass to the height of a horse, within which a multitude of game lurked, lured them on.

"There were Poles and Lithuanians and Russians and even Turks among them. They became marvelous shots, riders and swimmers; their horses were famous for their swiftness and endurance. Their difference gradually blended in a unity of purpose and principle.

"The Ukraine includes Southeastern Russia, with the exception of the province known as Bessarabia, which partakes of the character of the Balkan States and is peopled with Rumanians and Bulgarians. The great seaport of Odessa and surrounding country have been added to it under the new alignment.

"The Ukraine does not reach much north of Kiev or east of Kharkov, but it is a large State in itself, about as large as the German Empire, with some twenty-five or thirty millions of people living in it.

"The largest city of the real Ukraine is Kiev, around which national life probably centers associations in connection with the shrines and many holy places. It was at one time the capital of all Russia. Kharkov is the leading commercial town in it, unless Odessa, on the Black Sea, is considered.

"There is a lure about the limitless stretches of the steppes in the Ukraine. In wide, level spaces, or in gentle undulations, they reach out until sky and horizon meet in a barely perceptible line. Parts of it remind one very much of our own Western prairies. In Spring and Summer it is ocean of verdure, with the varied shades of green of the growing vegetation interspersed with flowers of many hues; later, in the Autumn, after the crops are harvested, it becomes a brown waste of stubble and burned-up pastures; in Winter it is a white, glistening expanse of snow.

"The unending forest land of the north has disappeared—not suddenly, but by degrees. Most of it is treeless, however, and a feeling of sadness and almost depression involuntarily creeps upon one as he travels over the steppes for the first time.

"There are not many old towns in the Ukraine. Except in Kiev and Kharkov, one will hardly find a building more than a hunred years old. No old mediaeval churches built up by the toil of generations of devout hands, no old chateaux of the nobility, no palaces rich in picture will be encountered. The great majority of the towns are still big, overgrown villages.

"The towns are separated from each other by enormous distances, with imperfect communication. The peasants plant their villages in the lee of some swell in the surface or by the edge of a stream in which they can water their flocks during the drought which may come.

BACHELORS WILL UNITE IN DEFENSE

Growth Of Movement Against Unmarried Men Alarms French Celibates

Paris, June 30.—The "anti-bachelor" campaign is spreading so rapidly throughout France that a number of millionaire bachelors have written anonymous letters to the papers, suggesting the immediate need of an organisation of celibates to combat it.

A large number of unmarried Americans, domiciled in France, fear that they may be subject to the proposed new tax of 10 percent on their net incomes.

Various organisations formed to combat the low French birthrate started trouble for the bachelors by calling upon Georges Carpentier and other well-known figures to join the ranks of the benedicts. Thus far Carpentier is the only one publicly named who has satisfied the wishes of the "more-baby" adherents by getting married.

The proposal for the tax on bachelors is arousing widespread comment in the French papers. Preparations are being made for a bitter fight when the measure comes up in the chamber of deputies.

Feminist leaders in the city of Perigueux have launched a new attack on the bachelors by forming the first branch of an "Anti-Bachelor society," which is to have other units throughout the country. The Perigueux women not only demand a tax on unmarried men, but demand that they be refused the voting privilege and also be refused public office.

One of the amusing contributions to the pro and con battle over the proposed tax comes from "an old maid," who anonymously signs herself "Odette Dulac."

"I sympathise fully with the unmarried men in this crisis," writes Mlle Dulac. "Our legislators are proceeding on the theory that the unmarried state is a luxury and that therefore bachelors should pay a sort of luxury tax.

"Now this is all wrong. There are many thousands of men and many thousands of women who have never married, not because they did not want to, but because of some tragedy in their lives, or because they themselves were not wanted. Is the government going to penalise these heartsick persons, living in solitude, because there are some glaring examples of men and women who want to be free to live gayer lives?"

SAYS SPANISH GIRL HAS MOST CHARM

English Newspaperman Puts Beauties Of America In Second Place

New York, June 30.—Girls, girls, did you know that you have been shoved into second place in the world beauty and charm contest? Did you know that the Spanish senorita, with her dark eyes, skin and inky black costumes is the first ranking beauty of today?

Well, an English newspaper man, who has just returned from a tour through Spain, thinks that way. List ye to his prattle, and who knows, perhaps you may get a few pointers:

"The Spanish girl—

"In the whole world of femininity there is nothing like her. She is a wonder; she is a dream; she is like nothing else you have ever seen or thought of. She has acquired a new beauty, new accomplishments, new dignity. Her manner and her charm are perfect.

"She has puzzled me and I have studied her, for she is so different from the others. This woman is a new disturber of the peace of the world. When the time comes she will make rings round all the others.

"There have been days when, watching some of the daintiest things tripping along the avenues in America in the sunshine, seeing how with a marvelous American acuteness they had attached a fineness of France to their Anglo-Saxon quality. I have thought that the young American girl was to be the joy and the torture of the world. I leave out of these considerations the English girl for obvious reasons. Now, I am sure the Spanish senorita has the measure of the rest.

"Never have I seen women more charmingly, bewitchingly attired, and yet it is most exceptional for any of them, morning, noon or night, to be dressed in anything but black. They know what heights they can achieve with their traditional Spanish black. And it is not without reason that one of the foremost Parisian modistes had recently built a veritable palace, one of the grandest of new commercial houses, in the Carrera de San Jeronime.

"Dignity, restraint, taste, manners, femininity—here we have emphasised them enough and rightly. But think not, Europeans and Americans, that the old Spanish feminine soul no longer burns. Look upon these rare complexions, transparent ivory with olive showing through—and most rarely do you see a touch of powder on them—the perfectly molded features, the coal black hair and eyes—most piercing eyes.

"Here are fire and flame! Here is the Spaniard still, finer, quicker, keener, hotter than e'er before. She is such a one as men would risk kingdoms for. I have seen nothing like her. She is an improvement on Cleopatra. The Spanish men know her tremendous value; they know it well. I wish.

"It is true. I am old enough to know better than to write like this."

See $15,000,000 In Lusitania Salvage

Paris, June 29.—If the refloating of the Lusitania proves successful it will result in the division of at least $15,000,000 between a French salvaging company, the British Government and the Cunard Line, according to an announcement made here by the directors of the steamship line. Although extensive preparations are being made for the venture, the Cunard company does not expect success, pointing out that the size of the vessel and the depth to be overcome will make the operation the costliest in the history of such work. Nevertheless, the wealth of jewelry, gold and silver bars known to have gone down with the ship offers an unprecedented inducement to the salvage company.

Experts have decided that it will be necessary to cut the vessel into five portions, exclude the water under pressure and then bring the sections to the surface. It is estimated that at least a year will be required for the work, if successful. The largest vessel raised heretofore by this system had a tonnage of only 8,000.

The French navy officials are interested; for, if successful, the Government may consider seriously the project for the refloating of many valuable ships sunk in shallow water by submarines.

MEXICO GOLD IS SAVED BY NERVE OF AN AMERICAN

Bruno Newman's Quick Wit Foiled Attempt To Loot Nation's Reserve

HAD VAULT COMBINATION

Refused Demand Of Carranza Men And Escaped Through Back Room

New York, June 20.—To the quick wit and integrity of an American business man is due the fact that, unlike most Latin American republics, Mexico's paper currency remained on a sound basis through the recent revolution, although Carranza tried to take with him in his flight the gold that guarantees it. Incidentally, Carranza did take the remainder of Mexico's gold reserve, but the revolutionists recovered the greater part of it.

The hero of the story, which has reached here from Mexico City, is Bruno Newman, a figure unique in the business of Mexico City. He is a Harvard man who went to Mexico fifteen years ago and is now at the head of one of the best known exporting and importing houses of Mexico. Besides being a member of the board of directors of the American Chamber of Commerce of Mexico he is one of the executive committee of the Confederation de Camaras de Comercio de los Estados Unidos Mexicanos, corresponding to the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. He married into an ancient and aristocratic Mexican family.

SPECULATORS IN CORNER

Early last year the Mexican Government found that speculators had bought up nearly all the Mexican silver money in circulation and sent it out of the country, because of the high price of silver. A new coinage issue containing less silver disappeared in six weeks. The Government announced its intention to issue paper money to replace the silver, and thereupon there was much protest, because Mexico's previous experience of paper currency had been ample. In the emergency the Government asked the Confederacion de Camaras de Comercio to guarantee the issue. This the Confederacion agreed to do if the Government would let it have a committee in the mint to prevent overprinting and particularly if the Government would deposit daily in the vault of the Monetary Commission the gold to protect that day's issue of paper and turn over the combination of the vault to one of the Confederacion's officers.

When the paper money was issued the Confederation not only guaranteed it, but sent agents about the city to vouch for its reliability to the business people, large and small, and in the hands of Bruno Newman was placed the combination of the vault of the commission, where was kept nothing but the gold to guarantee the currency.

TENSE SITUATION

That was the situation when, on the evening of May 6 at 6 o'clock a telephone message called Bruno Newman to the Monetary Commission office. He was ushered into the directors' room and found several men and a guard of soldiers. Laborers were busy nailing up boxes and securing them with iron straps, and these boxes were filled with gold.

"We are going to Vera Cruz tonight," said one of the officials, "and we want the three and a half million gold you have in the vault to take with us. We will pay for the paper money from Vera Cruz. There are twenty-three million in gold in those boxes you see there, but we want all the Government funds."

"Gentlemen," said Newman, "this money does not belong to the Government. It belongs to the people who are holding the paper money outstanding and the Confederacion de Camaras de Comercio are keeping the money as a trust for the people. I represent the Confederacion."

"Here is an order from the Government for the money," said the spokesman of the officials. "We have no time to argue. Give us the combination or open the vault."

BATTLE OF WITS BEGINS

Newman had been through the Madero, Huerta and Carranza revolutions, and he knew what happened sometimes to men who, from motives however elevated, crossed Mexican leaders with soldiers at their command. He laid his hat and stick on the table.

"All right, gentlemen," he said resignedly. "It's your responsibility, since you order me to do it. I'll have to get the combination from our clerk back here."

He walked into the back office where the Confederacion did its business connected with money matters.

"Beat it through that window quick," he said to the single clerk, and the clerk did.

Then Newman walked quiety out through the crowd, passing a party of secret service men supposed to watch for him and hailed a total stranger passing in the street. "Hold on there," he said, "I want to speak to you." He stepped out into the darkening street.

THE TRICK IS DISCVERED

After nearly a half hour the officials began to wonder why Newman took so long. When they discovered his trick they decided it was a bit too rough even for Mexico to blow the safe and take the gold that guaranteed the paper money, especially as Carranza hoped to come back before long. They went to Vera Cruz without it.

Newman remained in hiding until Obregon and Gonzales marched in, and then it was proclaimed that the gold for redeeming the paper money was still safe in the vault.

As to the fate of the 23,000,000 pesos gold that Newman saw that night in boxes, 18,000,000 of them came back to Mexico city. The revolutionaries captured ten of the fifteen Carranza trains that left Mexico the night of May 6 for Vera Cruz and found the gold aboard them.

Chicagoan Returns to Schleswig, Now German Dominance Is Over

Chicago, June 20.—For the first time in fifty years C. L. Benson is going to his old home in Denmark with a feeling of perfect security. He is head of the C. L. Benson Company, wholesale fish dealers, and lives on Kenmore avenue.

He was born in Denmark in a section then under German dominance, but left before he was 14 to escape being drafted into the German army. He came to Chicago fifty years ago this month with hardly a cent.

"He used to go back to Denmark now and then," said his son, A. J. Benson. "He had to slip quietly into his home for fear of the German police. Never could he stay more than twenty-four hours."

'Tired Tango Face' Developing In Paris

Paris, June 20.—With the spread of the dancing craze in Paris there has developed what physicians and beauty specialists call the "tired tango face." Eye trouble and extreme nervousness frequently characterise the "disease." It is caused by "burning the candle at both ends."

Paris has thousands of young women who work all day and dance more than half the night, they are the victims of the "tired tango face."

Mrs. Harding Did Not Care To Be First Lady Of Land

Chicago, June 19.—"I am content to trail my husband's limelight," said Mrs. Warren Harding, wife of the Senator from Ohio and candidate for President, today, "but I can't see why any one should want to be President during the next four years. I can see but one word written over the head of my husband if he is elected, and that word is 'tragedy.'

"I would much rather have him Senator than President. Being Senator and being a Senator's wife is really a wonderful life. Of course, now that he is in the race and wants to win, I must want him to, but down in my heart I am sorry."

This democratic woman, stunning, smiling, delightful says she has one fad—her husband. "He is the most wonderful man in the world," she says. "He can differ with people without offending them. His smile, so his friends in Washington tell him, should get him anything he wants.

"Of course we haven't seven daughters, but that isn't any reason why we should be barred from the White House. We wish we had seven. We haven't any, but the Senator flirts with every baby he sees, and he always stops to say something to the little folks he meets."

Mrs. Harriman's Stolen Opera Tickets—And What Happened

How Young Mr. Mecchi Bought an Excellent Box Seat, Settled Himself Joyously to Hear Caruso—and Was Promptly Thrown Out of the Metropolitan Opera House

1—Mr. Mecchi Settled Himself Comfortably in the Box, Glanced About the Famous Horseshoe and Congratulated Himself on What a Fine Seat He Had, When an Attendant Touched Him on the Shoulder and Asked If He Would Kindly Move to the Back of the Box and Allow the Ladies of a Party Just Arriving to Have the Front Seats.

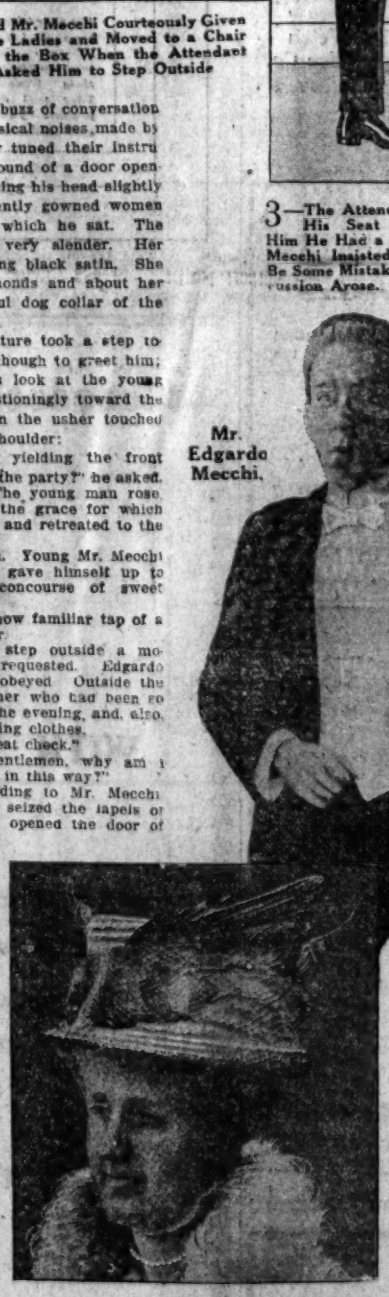
2—Hardly Had Mr. Mecchi Courteously Given Way to the Ladies and Moved to a Chair in the Rear of the Box When the Attendant Returned and Asked Him to Step Outside

3—The Attendants Asked to See His Seat Check and Told Him He Had a Stolen Ticket. Mr. Mecchi Insisted That There Must Be Some Mistake and a Heated Discussion Arose.

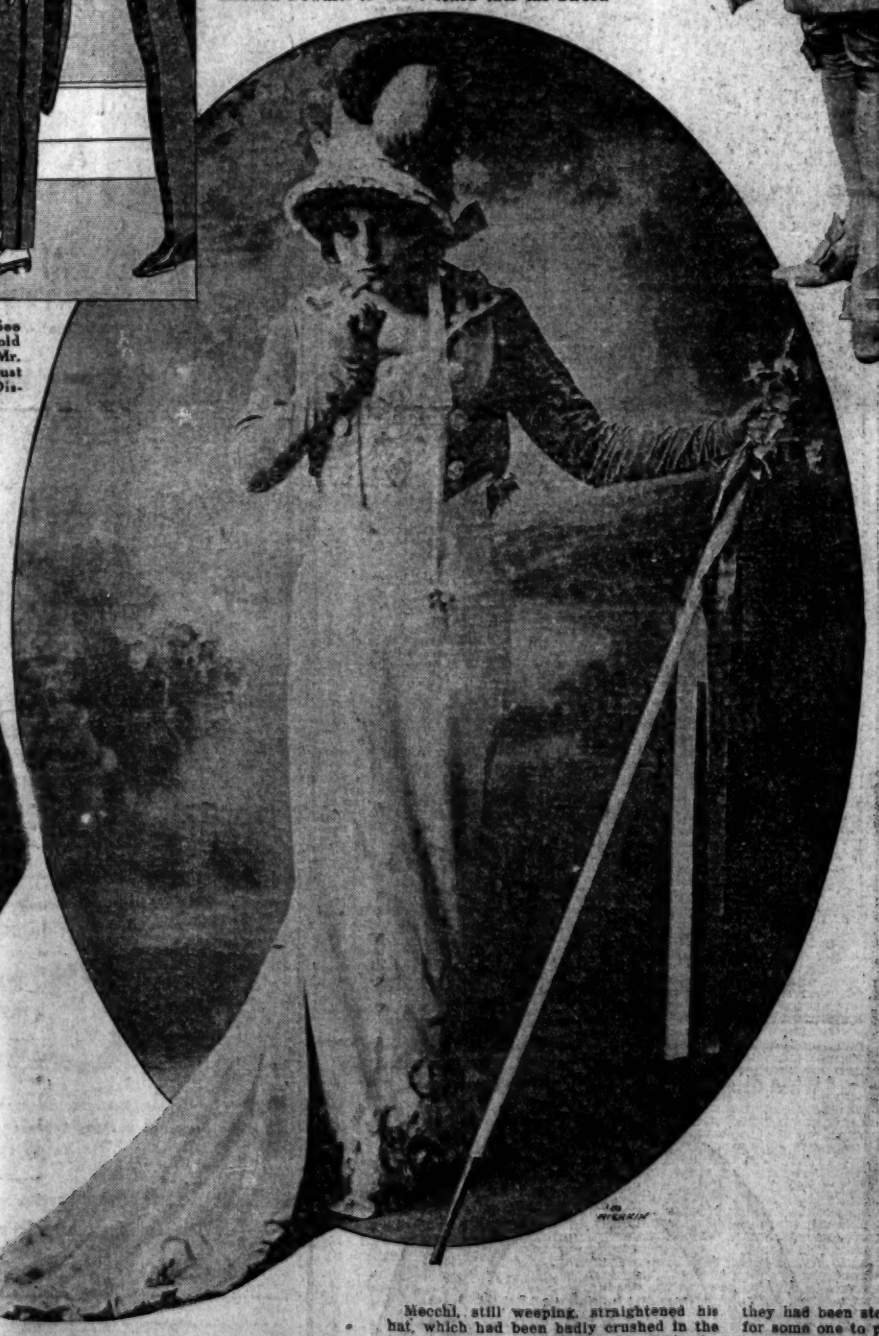
4—As the Argument Continued and Mr. Mecchi Protested in Loud and Vigorous Tones, He Declares He Was Roughly Seized by Two Attendants, Hustled Downstairs and Pitched Into the Street.

Caruso in His Role in the Opera "Manon Lescaut."

Mr. Edgardo Mecchi.



Mrs. E. H. Harriman.



Mme. Claudia Muzio, Who Sang the Prima Donna Part in the Opera "Manon Lescaut."

It was Saturday night at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York. The famous Caruso, most golden-throated of tenors, was to sing. His gifted countrywoman, Claudia Muzio, was the prima donna. The opera was "Manon Lescaut."

From their luxurious limousines the wealthiest men in the world and the loveliest and best-gowned women were alighting and making their way to their appointed places in the resplendent horseshoe. Not a man among them who could not sign his check for millions—not a woman whose jewels were not worth a king's ransom.

But not all those who thronged into the Metropolitan on this Saturday night were millionaire captains of industry or kings of finance. With the leaders of the smart set there came also men and women of the humbler classes of society—people who could afford only seats far removed from the resplendent horseshoe. They came, these workingmen and people of modest means, not because it was fashionable to attend the opera, not because they had fine clothes or jewels to display, but to gratify their love for music.

One of these music lovers was a young Italian who had come to this country some time ago to learn American banking methods. Edgardo Mecchi was the young man's name. He had chosen this night for his visit to the opera for two reasons—because Caruso was to sing and because the opera was by Puccini, who had been a friend of Mecchi's father.

He had come early in order to be sure of obtaining a good seat. He was delighted when his inquiries in the lobby resulted in his obtaining one of the coveted bits of pasteboard.

Perhaps it was only good for standing room or a gallery seat—he was not at all familiar with American tickets—but even that was well worth having.

Imagine his delight when the usher led him to a seat in a parterre box! This evening would be one to boast of to his friends and to describe in glowing terms in his next letter to Italy. Could there be any better evidence of the democracy of this wonderful America than the fact that he was to hear Caruso sing from a seat in the famous horseshoe of wealth and fashion of which he had read so much?

Young Mr. Mecchi made a pleasing picture as he settled himself in one of the front chairs of parterre box No. 9. The red curtains of the opera house supplied an attractive background for his dark, handsome face, radiant with eager anticipation of the musical feast.

Perhaps he would have felt less at ease had he known that the box in which he sat was occupied on alternate Saturday nights by the rich and fashionable Mrs. Willard Straight. Perhaps he would have felt some embarrassment had he dreamed that tonight this box was the property of Mrs. Harriman—Mrs. E. H. Harriman, the widow of the great railroad magnate, founder of the Harriman National Bank, and mistress of a million dollar estate on the banks of the Hudson.

But, knowing none of these things, young Mr. Mecchi only settled himself more comfortably in his chair and gave himself up to quiet enjoyment of the brilliant scene that was unfolding all around him.

He glanced at the box on his right. Could that girlish, fair haired young woman who was just entering be Mrs. Vincent Astor? He thought so, for the box was Number 7, and he remembered having read that this was the one occupied by Vincent Astor, the richest young man in the world.

Just then he felt some one tap him on the shoulder.

"Please let me see your seat check," said an usher.

From the inside of his coat, where Mr. Mecchi had carefully placed it when he sat down, he drew forth the precious bit of pink pasteboard. The usher scrutinized it carefully and withdrew.

By now the great auditorium was beginning to be pretty well filled. It was almost time for the curtain to rise.

Suddenly above the buzz of conversation and the medley of musical noises made by the orchestra as they tuned their instruments he heard the sound of a door opening behind him. Turning his head slightly he saw two magnificently gowned women entering the box in which he sat. The taller of them was very slender. Her gown was of glistening black satin. She wore a tiara of diamonds and about her neck was a wonderful dog collar of the same glittering gems.

This imposing creature took a step toward Mr. Mecchi as though to greet him; then, with a dubious look at the young man, she turned questioningly toward the waiting usher. Again the usher touched Mr. Mecchi on the shoulder:

"Would you mind yielding the front seats to the ladies of the party?" he asked.

"Certainly not." The young man rose, bowed low with all the grace for which his nation is famous, and retreated to the rear of the box.

The overture began. Young Mr. Mecchi closed his eyes and gave himself up to enjoyment of the concourse of sweet sounds.

Again he felt the now familiar tap of a hand on his shoulder.

"Will you please step outside a moment?" the usher requested. Edgardo Mecchi wonderingly obeyed. Outside the box he faced the usher who had been so attentive to him all the evening, and, also, another man in evening clothes.

"Let us see your seat check."

"Good heavens, gentlemen, why am I annoyed all the time in this way?"

For answer, according to Mr. Mecchi, one of the two men seized the lapels of his coat. The other opened the door of the box, took down his hat and overcoat and flung them at him.

By this time the young opera goer was choking with rage and amazement. But before he could make any protest or offer any successful resistance his tormentors were, so he says, dragging him to the nearest exit. There they were met by an Italian interpreter.

"What does this outrage mean?" demanded the young Italian.

"Rubato!" growled the interpreter.

"Stolen! I steal? How dare you insinuate such a thing!" young Mr. Mecchi stormed.

"No," the interpreter explained, "but the ticket you have was stolen by someone. You may not have a seat in that box. It has already been sold to someone else."

"Then give me another seat," urged Mr. Mecchi.

"That cannot be done."

"Why not?"

"Because the house is sold out. There is not another seat to be had, but we have no objections to your standing."

"But there is a good reason why I cannot do that," Mr. Mecchi replied. "As you see, I am not tall. I cannot see over the shoulders of the crowd.

But this argument failed to convince. And then, so Mr. Mecchi declares, he was again seized by the lapels of his coat. With what he says was quite unnecessary violence he was hall pulled, half dragged down the long corridor and through the foyer. One of his assailants followed Mr. Mecchi to the last of the series of three doors through which the surprised opera goer was catapulted. There, with what the young man says felt distinctly like a vigorous kick, he was thrust out of the opera house with a force that sent him spinning dizzily about on the pavement. He was able to save himself from pitching headlong into the gutter only by grasping a convenient lamppost.

He stood there trying to collect his scattered senses. When he realized all that had happened so quickly and apparently so without reason, the emotional young man began to weep.

A tall, dark-eyed man with grizzled hair offered Mecchi a steadying hand. From across the street a policeman came running to see what the trouble was.

"What is the matter?" asked the tall, dark-eyed man gently.

"I have been assaulted." And then, turning to the policeman, "Go in and arrest the men who did it."

But the policeman was apparently unable to believe that anybody connected with the great Metropolitan Opera House could have been guilty of assault on one of its patrons.

"Aw, g'wan," replied the policeman. "Beat it quick or I'll lock you up."

Mecchi, still weeping, straightened his hat, which had been badly crushed in the encounter, and put on his coat. Again the tall, dark-eyed man spoke.

"This is my card," he said. "I have written on the back of it my lawyer's address. Tell him that I sent you, and tell him that I witnessed this outrage and will testify to what I saw."

Young Mr. Mecchi was late next morning at the Bank of Naples, where he is employed. He was conferring with Antonio Caridi in his law offices at No. 261 Broadway.

"Yes, I am hurt," he told Mr. Caridi. "My hand, as you see, has a long scratch on the back and my head aches fearfully from the shock. But the great pain is in my heart. I was affronted, humiliated. A thousand persons must have seen how I was treated. It is for the mortification to my spirit that I wish to sue.

"Do you know the names of the men who assaulted you?"

"No, how could I? I only know that I asked at the box office for a ticket and was told 'All sold out.' I turned around, they had been stolen. We were watching for some one to present them.

"Occasionally this happens. Tickets are lost or stolen. But in such cases the person presenting them quietly accepts the situation. This young man, however, talked loudly. Employes removed him."

There the matter rests until the court can have an opportunity of deciding its merits. It will be interesting to see exactly what sort of defense the opera house management will make to Mr. Mecchi's suit, for the Metropolitan has always boasted of the warm welcome it assures all music lovers, even though they be not men and women of great wealth and high social position. If Mr. Mecchi's surprising story is upheld by the courts the opera house management will be able to excuse itself only by throwing the blame for the unfortunate affair upon the stupidity and brutality of certain of its employes.

But according to young Mr. Mecchi, no amount of damages can ever quite atone for the humiliation he suffered when he was deprived of the coveted opportunity of hearing Caruso sing "Manon Lescaut."

A man in business clothes stood on one side, a policeman on the other. The man in business clothes said, 'You wish to buy a ticket? I will sell you this one.' 'Let me see it,' I said. It read, 'Parterre, Box 7, S.13, March 27, 1920.' Also the price was printed out—$2.95. 'I will take it,' I said. I handed the man four one dollar bills and he gave me fifteen cents change."

On the strength of the story which young Mecchi told Lawyer Caridi drew and filed papers charging the Metropolitan Opera House management with "effecting with unnecessary force a patron who had in good faith purchased a ticket."

"I think I recall the incident," said House Manager Ziegler, of the Metropolitan, when asked to present his side of the story. "The box was Mrs. E. H. Harriman's for that evening. She and Mrs. Willard Straight use it alternate Saturdays.

"We had received a complaint from Mrs. Harriman. She wrote us that her tickets had disappeared and that she believed

Hankow Market

Hankow, July 28, 1920.

FINANCE AND MONEY MARKET

A very quiet week with no bills offering and little or no demand. A little inter-bank business made its appearance on the 22nd. Taels T.T. on Shanghai, Chinese market sell, to 96.425. Foreign banks quoted 96.75, but there was very little demand. Dollars closed easy at 70.05-70.25. Interest 4 percent. Changsha exchange. Nominal.

IMPORTS

The market for piece goods holds its own as regards prices which are however quite nominal in the complete absence of business. There will be no improvement for at least a month.

EXPORTS

The market is dull and there is nothing of interest to report.

Naval Authorities Plan 18-Inch Guns For New Ships

Washington, June 2.—Naval authorities are considering the advisability of mounting 18-inch guns on some of the newer capital craft.

An experimental 18-inch gun, which would fire a projectile having a diameter of a foot and a half, has been designed by the navy's ordnance experts, and it is understood that the construction of an experimental weapon of this kind has been begun.

Naval officials were very reticent today when asked about the new gun. Ordnance experts declared to authorise any statement whatever, saying that when a new weapon of larger calibre had been tested they would be ready to talk. When Secretary Daniels was asked whether 18-inch guns were being constructed by the navy, he said:

"I can say nothing except that experiments are being made in the matter of a gun of larger than 16-inch calibre; but we have given no orders yet for the construction of such a gun."

The latest American dreadnoughts are armed with main batteries of 16-inch guns. It is understood to be the plan of the naval experts, if the 18-inch experimental gun stands the tests, to recommend that weapons of this class be mounted on the projected battle cruisers.

MUNICIPAL NOTIFICATION

No. 2715.

SHANGHAI MUNICIPAL COUNCIL 6 PER CENT. STERLING LOAN, 1920.

Amount £750,000

Price of Issue £100 per cent.

UNDER the authority of Resolution VII passed at the Annual Meeting of Ratepayers on April 7, 1920, the Council hereby invites applications for Bearer Debentures (with coupons attached) in the 6 percent. Sterling Loan of 1920, which is issued on the following terms:—

(1) Debentures to Bearer, with Sterling interest coupons attached, will be issued at £100 percent in denominations of £1,000, £500, £100 and £50.

(2) The Debentures of this issue will bear interest at the rate of 6 percent per annum, payable on June 30 and December 31 in each year by sterling demand draft on London at par, or in silver (local currency) at the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation's Shanghai current demand buying rate on London on date of presentation of the relative coupon. The first payment of interest will be made on December 31, 1920.

(3) Applications, accompanied by payment in full, will be received by the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, No. 12 The Bund, on and after May 1, up to and including June 30, 1920, the Council reserving to itself the right of closing the subscription lists on any day previous to June 30, 1920, by Notification in the Municipal Gazette and Public Press of Shanghai.

(4) Payment on application will be accepted in Silver (local currency) at the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation's current selling T.T. rate on London and will bear interest from date of payment, or in Sterling by T.T. or Demand Draft on London. Interest on payments made in Sterling will only accrue from the date on which the relative remittances are received by the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, London.

The cost of all telegrams involved through payment by Sterling T.T. shall be paid by the applicant.

Payment will be acknowledged by Banker's Receipt pending issue of the Debentures.

In the event of any applicant not being allotted the full amount applied for, the amount over-applied for will be repaid in full, plus interest at the rate of 6 percent per annum from the date payment was received in Shanghai or London to the due date of repayment in Shanghai, as notified to the applicant by special notice from the Council.

(5) The Loan will be redeemed at par on June 30, 1950, but may be redeemed by the Council in whole or in part on June 30, 1930, and/or on any subsequent date or dates on which the half-yearly interest is payable, subject to the Council giving six calendar months' notice in the Municipal Gazette and Public Press of Shanghai. In the event of any partial redemption of the loan the numbers of the Debentures to be redeemed will be decided by drawing. The numbers of such drawn Debentures will be notified in the Municipal Gazette and Public Press of Shanghai not less than three months prior to the date of repayment.

Application forms can be obtained on and after May 1, from the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, No. 12 The Bund, or from the Treasurer and Comptroller, Finance Department, 24a Kiangse Road, to whom all enquiries should be addressed.

By order,
N. O. LIDDELL,
Secretary

WEATHER

The typhoon recurves gradually towards Kirin; it may have left a secondary whirl to the North of the Meiaco-Simas. Rough weather between the Loochoos and Japan; unsettled between Formosa and the mouth of the Yangtsze. Intense heat; local thunderstorms.

China Beware!

(Contributed)

IN the recent troubles in the North one thing stands out more distinctly than any other from a military point of view. That is the absolute failure of the Japanese trained Chinese troops under fire or in field operations, as compared with those trained by officers of other nationalities.

If China would only listen to her well wishers this result of Japanese training could have been told to her higher authorities long ago.

Japan would do anything in her power to get the training of the whole of the Chinese army, not because it would benefit China in the least to have them so trained, but simply because it would suit Japan. Japan would teach the Chinese to strut about, with a grotesque step, which would make a great showing on parade, but would get the Chinese army no "forarder" towards winning a battle.

As long as there is no fighting to be done this parade strutting is both attractive and interesting but it is no preparation for war. It leaves out all the essentials for field work. The Japanese trained Chinese army has never been trained as has been the Japanese army. The latter has been trained, so as to be of the greatest value in war and not for official displays on the parade ground, though the efficient training for field operations makes a far greater show, when it comes to parade displays, than does the make-believe foisted on the Chinese army by the Japanese.

It is quite natural that the Japanese should not desire to make the Chinese army as efficient as is the Japanese army. There can be little doubt as to who would win, in a war between Japan and China, given equal efficiency in training, equipment, organisation and staff work, not forgetting officering. Japan under such conditions would unquestionably go under, if for no other reason, in response to the overwhelming numbers in China but there are other reasons why she should go under. John Chinaman, that stamp described by Mr. J. O. P. Bland as the "lord of the soil," though essentially a lover of peace, is by nature far and away a better soldier than the Japanese. The Japanese have a reputation of being fearless in face of death but the Chinese have this fearlessness in a tenfold degree. The Japanese is a slow-thinking and slow-moving person but it is a foolish man who thinks the Chinese "lord of the soil" is either slow-thinking or slow-moving. His record in France refuted this from the very day he arrived there, if it ever wanted any refuting. Properly led, instructed and looked after, the Chinese, who goes for a soldiers life, is much more amenable to discipline than is the same class in Japan, for the simple reason that he is of a much higher intelligence than the latter.

Japan secured the training of the new forces in China, because Japan did not want them trained. Japan has certain well-defined designs upon China, which makes Japan very anxious that China shall not have an efficiently trained army. It suits Japan's convenience in face of those designs that Japan should prevent by all means in her power any other friendly state offering the services of capable officers to train the Chinese army. Hence the great anxiety to have frequent displays on parade, which mean nothing. If China can only read the warning of the breakdown of the Tingkuochun, she would give one month's notice to every Japanese engaged to train the Chinese army, paying them up to the end of their engagement, so as to get rid of them the more quickly. It would be cheap at the price as it would save the betrayal of the martial spirit of the Chinese lord of the soil.

All critics of the recent fighting and in fact of any fighting in China in recent years point to the natural bravery of the Chinese officer, and soldier. This bravery cannot be destroyed but it certainly can be rendered ineffective by the tactics employed in training the Chinese army for parades rather than fighting.

Can the authorities in Peking realise what the result of the recent war in Europe would have been, if Britain, France and Italy had placed the training and equipment of their armies in the hands of the Prussian. It would have meant that these countries would have had no armies other than those of the parade ground to oppose the triumphal march of the Germans to their much dreamed of realm of world power or "that place in the Sun."

China will indubitably rue the day she allows a single Japanese to remain connected in any way with its Army, Navy or Gendarmarie, but above all with its arsenals or the iron and coal mines, whence these arsenals should now be drawing their supplies and do not, owing to their being in the hands of Japan. Why did not China make a colossal fortune out of her coal and iron mines during the enormous demand brought about by the great war? It did not suit Japan that China should so make a fortune. Japan has her talons on the iron and coal resources of China, having successfully, by underhand and cunning means got rid of the attempts of her rivals, the friends of China, to open up these natural resources of China for the benefit of China and not for Japan. Ten years ago the Chinese students fondly thought, that by the abrogation of any and all mining concessions they were doing a great and noble work for China, through the recovery of sovereign rights. It was the hidden and insidious propaganda of Japan they were unknowingly acting upon, with the result that they strangled themself same sovereign rights and handed them over, bound hand and foot, to Japan.

For military reasons Japan does not want China's natural resources develop. She knows China cannot without foreign monetary assistance carry out the development of the country's resources, so surreptitiously through a Japanese subsidised press in China she carried on her recovery of rights propaganda. Why does Japan object to mining and industrial development in China The answer is very easy to find and has been told throughout the history of the Manchu rule in China. The Manchus did not want the Chinese to become rich lest they should, through riches become independent and throw off the yoke, which that dynasty had placed on the country. The object of the Japanese is the same, to choke off all means by which China may possibly become rich and thus resist the yoke which Japan contemplates placing on China. The plot is deep but not deeper than Japan's historic cunning.

Japan has very skillfully, and with an almost unseen hand countered all the efforts of the friends of China, who would have helped her, admittedly through no "high falutin'" ideas of philanthropy, to establish mining and industrial undertakings which would have made her rich and independent and an increasingly good customs. No other such condition would have made for the integrity of China and given all classes of the people a definite object to fight for if attacked. This feeling on the part of the Chinese people is the last thing in the world desired by Japan.

China must now with her recent attempt to put her house in order, dismiss all Japanese influence from her army and encourage by all means in her power the development of her mining and industrial resources so that the people of the country may become rich and patriotic. By this means the country will become sufficiently united and strong to form an effective barrier against all attempts at disintegration.

It may be necessary in order to encourage mining and industrial development for the government to remove all royalties and taxes upon such undertakings for a period of at least five years. The government would be more than repaid by the extra riches and contentment of the people, tending as it would to consolidation. Revenue would come back indirectly tenfold in other ways, chiefly through the increased riches of the working classes. China must for its own sake be put on a footing, financially, industrially, and militarily, independent of Japan and this must be done by China's strong men of today or it may be too late. These strong men must not have history write "they failed the people who trusted them."

The Spectator

Statistics of Improvidence.

In a little pamphlet issued by a life insurance company, I find the following interesting table:

PRINCIPAL CAUSES OF DEATH of the 9,257 policy-holders who died in the first quarter of 1920.

Influenza	605
Pneumonia	484
Heart disease	347
Consumption	229
Cancers and tumors	211
Bright's disease	201
Apoplexy	147
Diseases of arteries	145
Accidents	137
Diseases of digestive organs	65
Paralysis	53
Bronchitis, pleurisy, etc	42
Liver disease	39
Diabetes	38
War	29
Blood poisoning, anemia, etc.	29
Appendicitis	28
Typhoid fever	18
Old age	17
Nervous prostration, congestion of brain	5
Spinal disease	5
Rheumatism	7
All other causes	398

This list is well worth thinking over. It shows, among other things, that war is less deadly than disease, that microbes and ignorance are vastly more dangerous enemies to the human race than Huns and guns; that old age, which is the disease by which we all ought to have the privilege of dying, is reserved for only 17, while tuberculosis, which is largely preventable, claims 229.

Other facts as indicated in this pamphlet emphasise that the people of the United States, industrious and intelligent as they are, have not yet begun to realise the importance of thrift. What this country has accomplished, in spite of its wasteful and extravagant ways, has been amazing. What it might accomplish if it were a nation of prudent and thrifty workers would be much more amazing. Out of every twenty people in the United States nineteen fail to provide either for their old age or for their families at death. Americans work hard for their wives and children, but are still astoundingly fatuous in the matter of safeguarding their surplus.

Over eight million women must work to live.

It is the order of Nature that men should earn the wage while women should devote themselves to the still more important task of caring for the children and managing the economics of the household.

Thirty-five percent of the widows of the country are in want.

Ninety percent of estates of over $5,000 are entirely dissipated in seven years.

Ninety percent of the children who enter school at the age of six have to stop before completing the eighth grade and go to work.

Foresight relieves more misery than benevolence. Life insurance gives the nation more than thirty million dollars every year in maintaining the poor.

Seven-eighths of all the money left for their dependents is derived from life insurance.

Life insurance companies, trust companies and savings banks are growing throughout the United States. They are steadily training the people into habits of thrift.

This training, however, is deficient, because it applies to only grown people. The best training and the one which is surest of results, is that which is applied to children.

In every school there should be taught the fundamental principles of thrift, the need of it, the advantages of it, the morality of it, the happiness and the power that it brings.

Thrift is the great reservoir of national efficiency. Thrift should be followed and encouraged throughout the whole fabric of society from the National Congress down to the smallest schoolboy. For this is the best preparedness. The most invincible nation is not the one which has the severest military training, but the one which has the most inexhaustible resources.

LINES FROM LETTERS

Dear Bert: Summer has come. There is no doubt about its arrival. The sun has been burning a hole in me and I sit here sizzling like a grilled steak. The folk at Tientsin have finished sizzling, they have been reduced to ashes. The Good Book tells us that if we are bad we will have a home provided in a region where the thermometers all agree, and where the temperature is so high that the Mercury becomes hot air. Well Bert, believe me, we have almost reached that stage. I, for one, am going to lead a blameless life ever more.

The traffic here is going from bad to worse. It isn't so much the speed of the motors, or the want of grey matter displayed by the ricsha pullers, that make things an inferno. Now-a-days, to make things worse, the hooters when in action remind one of a strafing in No Man's Land, when both sides were roaring at the same time. On Sunday night, one young fool of a foreigner, to make the place more Bedlamic, than ever, sat on an auto and careered up the Maloo somewhere about 11 o'clock rattling an instrument that we both discarded after a year or so of this hot life, and at the same time he blew a tin trumpet. He evidently had smelt a singer beer and it had deprived him of the little grey matter which nature had endowed him with. He also deprived the poor devils who live anywhere near the Maloo of sleep.

The motor cars drive at you and knock you about with their pointed ends until you are so full of holes that the people behind you complain of the draught. You get that full of dents that the local golf club could make bunkers out of you. It's some place. Yours—

Ole Bill.

FOR OBSERVANCE OF THE GAME LAWS

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS.

Sir: Two years ago, by the publication of letters in the papers and with the help of the masters of the Cathedral school, we reduced the stealing of birds' eggs in the park. This year we saw only one boy after eggs and he was only taking those of the crows.

We shall be very glad if you will help in a campaign for game laws in China. The public conscience needs to be awakened (or created if necessary). It seems a very Lazarus when it comes to cruelty to "God's creatures."

A prominent sportsman said today that a petition signed by Shanghai sportsman had been placed with the authorities to no effect. He suggested that one should be sent to each of the legations. He said that "everybody" knew that a prominent firm of exporters held drives with from fifty to a hundred beaters, sweeping the country clean of feathered game.

Of course it is next to useless to try to influence the Chinese while foreign women allow their cooks to supply them with pheasants in the closed season under the name of "Shantung chicken" and a foreign "sport" can proudly display a photo of a houseboat bordered all round with the carcases of pheasants and while foreigners in the mountains show the natives the bad example of shooting in close time, just because there is no one to "run them in." If you will publish the dates of the opening and closing of the shooting season now, and again later, as a reminder it will be a great help.

We would earnestly enjoin every housekeeper to make a note of these dates and absolutely forbid the bringing into her house of any game whatever out of season.

People will mourn over a human baby orphaned or a woman left with a child to support, yet think nothing of the feathered babies left to starve (no orphanages nor helpful neighbors for them) or one parent struggling to feed four hungry mouths. Thanking you,

BIRD LOVER.

PROHIBITION AT KULING

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir: Sixty years ago, the Republican Party of the United States met in Chicago to adopt the platform of the party, and to select its Presidential candidate. It was a gathering that made history, for the candidate chosen was Abraham Lincoln.

In the preliminary debates Joshua Giddings, a lifelong worker in the cause of Abolition of Negro Slavery, when the platform had been read and received with tremendous cheers, moved to amend the first resolution by incorporating in it that phrase of the Declaration of Independence which announces the right of all men to "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

The convention was impatient of the delay which was bound to follow the discussion upon such an amendment. It was felt to be the wrong way of doing the right thing and so was voted down. Mr. Giddings, grieved and angry, rose and walked out of the Convention. Although he had given his whole life to the sacred cause he could not see the utter impracticability of the adoption of such an amendment. Without realising what he had done, he was acting as an enemy and opposer of the principles that he loved. Such has often been the case with the advocate of noble causes: "the children of light" frequently suffer from myopia in their business sense.

While personal friends were endeavoring to persuade Mr Giddings to return to his seat in the Convention; discussion had passed to the Second Resolution Mr. G. W. Curtis seized the chance to renew substantially Mr. Giddings' amendment. By cheerful and captivating oratory Mr. Curtis swept away objections that were raised. "I rise simply to ask you gentlemen to think well—before you dare to wince and quail before the assertion of the men of 1776—before you dare to shrink from repeating the words that these great men enunciated."

This strong appeal took the Convention by storm, and a new vote formally embodied this portion of the Declaration of Independence in the Resolution, and Mr. Giddings over-joyed with triumph, returned to his seat in the convention.

(I am indebted to Hay and Nicolay's Life of Abraham Lincoln for the above account.)

It is reported that certain jealous Prohibitionists at Kuling are not content with the Prohibition clause which appears in the proposed Constitution and Bylaws. Although it is clearly stated in the proposed Estate By-law that:

"No person shall open or keep a place for the manufacture or sale of intoxicating drinks or beverages."

The above zealous Prohibitionists state that this leaves a loophole for the licensing of Private Clubs and Hotels, where Alcohol can be sold and consumed.

It should be noticed that in the margin, opposite by-law No. 33, the words "Shop license" are printed. Probably this is a typographical error: these words being wrongly placed—their proper position being opposite Byelaw No. 34.

There does not appear in these by-laws, any provision for the licensing of hotels.

That it is possible, under the Licensing of Clubs, to allow for the sale of alcoholic beverages, is only too true, as residents in England are well aware. That safeguards against such an offense should be introduced, is not an unreasonable proposition. The best way of doing the same, however, is not by adding clauses against Club Licensing to the Prohibition Clause, but to deal with such a contigency in a separate clause of the Byelaws.

All the same, I venture to ask our fervid Prohibitionists, a direct question which needs a direct answer.

"Has there ever been a time in the history of Kuling, whereupon the public roads of the Estate a drunken man or woman has constituted a nuisance to the community?"

I have known Kuling for twenty-four years, and have never seen, or even heard of a drunkard's appearance on the Estate. Why should bad feeling be made by the unwise action of men who allow their zeal to lead them so far away from the honest course of acknowledging that the non-abstaining members of the community are not evil livers, nor ever likely to be?

On that historic occasion in 1860, Joshua Giddings made himself ridiculous, and seriously imperilled the good cause for which he had worked so hard.

The cause of Prohibition must not be imperilled by unwise advocacy.

Is not the action of such men, Prussian Militarism in another form? Does not the same desire of tyrannising over one's fellowmen dominate in their minds?

STANDARDISATION OF THE CHINESE LANGUAGE

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Dear Sir: Having read Miss Kwei's letter which appeared in your editorial on July 30, I am deeply convinced of the necessity of the unification or standardisation of the Chinese spoken language. Only a few days ago I was invited by a friend to a dinner. There were nine men at the table, including the host. My friend, the host, was a Fukienese; and of the other eight members five came from my friend's native place, one from Hangchow, one from Soochow, and the other, the writer, from Huchow, Chekiang. Everybody spoke his native dialect, except my friend who spoke both Fukien and the national language (mandarin). Of course the six Fukienese could talk easily among themselves, and the Hangchow guest, the Soochow guest, and I could talk easily among ourselves. So two parties were formed at the table. The one party wanted to be understood by the other party, but nearly every word said by the one party had to be transmitted to the other party through interpretation by the host. That way of talking was not only no fun at all but also too much work for the host. Afterward we began to communicate with each other in English because we learned that everybody at the table could speak English. Then we could understand each other, and each of us talked freely and laughed merrily. It is really a shame to talk among the Chinese in language other than the Chinese, but sometimes we cannot help it. Had we been able to talk in the same dialect, we should not have had to resort to the use of English. Let us all try our best to learn and speak the national language, the mandarin. I am, yours truly, T. T. EUGENE TSEU.

Hand-Knit Or Crocheted Wool Sweaters Lead In Popularity

BY ELEANOR GUNN

It is seldom that one finds a garment that is suitable for either town or country wear. The sweater smock belongs to this obliging category, for with a matching skirt it makes a modish frock for city street, and transplanted to rural lanes it becomes an attractive sports blouse.

Two tones of brown are used in this smock, beige for the smock itself and brown for the embroidery which trims it. Jersey is being used a good deal for sweaters and sweater blouses this season. The hat is of beige ribbon faced with brown straw, and since it is not of the large sunshade variety a parasol is carried for complexion protection—and for chic, too, we suspect.

KNITTED SWEATER

Among sweaters proper it is said that the most popular hand knit sweater is one of medium length made entirely of camel's hair in natural tone. It is very plain, with a long lapel collar of brushed camel's hair and a narrow knitted string belt. Some women prefer to knit this garment in a plain stitch, while others select a knit and purl block design to make the entire sweater.

Crocheted sweaters share honors equally with these knitted ones, and they are chiefly of the slip-on variety in plain filet patterns with conventional and flower designs. A number of the crocheted sweaters are made completely of filet squares without any fancy design at all. Pure silk is in greatest favor for sweaters of this variety, and French blue, tan and gray are the most popular shades.

Gay shades for all sweaters are favored this season, especially red, jade and the brilliant shades of blue, while pink is very popular for the more dressy sweaters. Very few knitted garments are adorned with buttons this year, although coat styles are most worn. One reason given for this is that the majority of the coat sweaters have tuxedo or long lapel collars, which prevent the use of buttons to fasten the sweater edges.

A NEW TRIMMING

The latest trimming for fancy sweaters is crocheted bands of loops. A sweater so decorated was seen recently at a smart resort, developed in pink Shetland and hand-knit with the exception of the collar, cuffs and lower edge, which were formed by several rows of crocheted loops, giving the effect of ostrich trimming.

Knowing The Value Of Food

BY BRICE BELDEN, M.D.

The mere maintenance of life and the development of energy are not the only requirements of a diet. Each human being is an individual organism, not simply a mechanical contrivance, and an ideal diet from a caloric standpoint will not necessarily nourish him properly. He may actually pine away upon such a diet.

Proteins, fats and carbohydrates are not sufficient in themselves to keep up our health and nutrition. Theoretically they constitute the chief elements of our diet. So far as mere bulk goes they do seem very important, but there are very small amounts of precious substances called vitamines without which the proteins, fats and carbohydrates are of little account.

Scientists have found that if animals are fed upon a diet of casein (representing the protein of milk), starch (representing the carbohydrates), and lard (representing the fats), all carefully purified by chemical treatment so as to exclude anything but these three substances, they soon cease to grow and also develop rickets and scurvy.

Just so soon, however, as fresh uncooked food of animal origin is added to the dietary of these animals they begin to grow again and become healthy.

Again, if puppies are fed upon oatmeal porridge, bread and a small amount of milk they become rickety. Animal fats, however, soon restore them to good health.

The fresh juice of certain fruits and vegetables is also potent in restoring to health animals fed upon theoretically ideal diets.

In other words, there are substances known as vitamines in some of our foods which are essential if we would be really healthy. Some are in the animal fats, like butter; some are in the juices of meat, in the legumes, in eggs, unpolished rice, whole wheat, fruit juices, fresh vegetables, milk and cream.

What's In A Name?

If, as Shakespeare says, all the world's a stage, and all the men and women in it players, then everybody is entitled to a stage name. Choose your own to fit the role you have assigned yourself, and you are only exercising your professional privilege. For the present, the custom—outside the domains of the theater and literature—is more general among women than men. But the fashion once diffused, there is no telling where it will end.

Says a writer in the Daily Mail of London: "Time was when we were content to abide slavishly by the names that 'n or m' had seen fit to bestow upon us at our christening, ere personality had imprinted itself on character and features, but today there are signs of revolt against a handicap such as is implied by an unsuitable Christian name.

"Modern men and women realise what a depth of psychological suggestion abides within a name, and what a dangerous thing it is to go through life attached to one that is antipathetic to one's nature.

"So they are busy rechristening themselves according to their own views or those of their friends, and are deriving quite a lot of fun and satisfaction from it.

"Polly is becoming Patricia, and endeavoring to live up to it. Daisy is calling herself Diana, and hoping that she looks like it. Human nature possesses a curious aptitude for approximating to the view formed of and for it, so the rechristening craze achieves a wonderful mental metamorphosis in quite a number of instances.

"The rose by any other name might smell as sweet, yet our feelings in regard to it might modify, were it known as stitchwort or mangelwurzel. Similarly it would be risky to be known as Martha when we long to be Penelope, and silly to suffer as Susan when we feel like Sophonisba. The world seems a different place when we feel ourselves rightly named for it.

"There have been fashions in names that absolutely date their owners. Dorothy and Phyllis proclaim their age to the world at large just as do the unfortunate creatures named by misguided parents after battles, jubilees and Russian dancers. For such the business of rechristening becomes sooner or later a positive duty.

"The rechristening habit once acquired, there is no reason why it should not be repeated at intervals, as we ago and develop. Just now the fashion is for the Slavonic. There are Ivans who in long clothes, were pure George and Sonias, who in their cradle were simply Ada. Not long ago favor was with the French, and Yvonnes and Margots were everywhere.

"After all, why not seek the appropriate? It may annoy one's relatives, who are apt to regard the rechristening craze as an affection amounting almost to deceit—but everybody's doing it."

Thomas Fleet—Eliz'beth Goose
Rev. Dr. Cotton Mather Presbyn
June 8, 1715.

This Elizabeth Goose was the eldest daughter of Elizabeth Foster, who on July 5, 1692, had married into a colonial family originally known as Vertigoose, later as Vergoose and finally shortened to Goose. Thomas Fleet was an English printer, who had come to Boston in 1712 and started a printing house on Pudding lane. In 1719 there appeared from the Fleet press a small volume entitled "Songs for the Nursery or Mother Goose's Melodies for Children—price, two coppers." So far as is known this is the earliest printed edition of the Mother Goose rhymes and no copy of the pamphlet is now extant. The verses are supposed to have been recited to the Fleet children by "Mother" or Grandmother Goose, the mother-in-law of Thomas Fleet, who collected the strange collection of rhymes and printed them, feeling that they would have a ready sale.

Although corroborative evidence is lacking, it is generally admitted that Fleet's mother-in-law was the original "Mother Goose," at least in the English language, and it is more than likely that she imported her verses from the other side of the Atlantic, where many of them have been traced back into folklore as ancient as that of the Latin Reine Pedauque, the queen with the goose-foot. Teutonic mythology also supplies a clue in the Freia, the goddess of motherhood. But it can hardly be doubted that, though the verses themselves antedate the colonial history of America, the "Mother Goose" verses as we know them today owe their place in printed literature to Thomas Fleet and his mother-in-law.

Siccawei Weather Reports

2.—The typhoon approaches Oshima and aims to pass between Naha and Kagoshima. Pressures high on E. Japan, low on the whole China. Cyclonic winds around the Loochoos, light and unsteady breezes, with numerous calms along our coasts. Intense heat, relieved a little about midday by the showers of a thunderstorm.

3.—Fine morning, a little cooler. The breeze tends to veer to the South. Pressure very low and still falling about 0. 20 below the average.

Hips Is Hips In The Newest Style

Any Cloth With A Bit Of Stiffening To It Goes Good

New York, June 30.—Gotham mid-summer fashion makers have just sprung their spasmodic riddle which deals with the august father of waters. For the uninitiated, be it now known that said little riddle declares that Mississippi shall be spelled and pronounced "Miss Is Hippy," and very hippy she is, we'll say. Manufacturers and retailers both say that the hips are now in popular favor all because Paree got angry about that paradise-finned hat that was thrown into the boudoir of France's first lady of the land and just as promptly bounced out again, while the Parisian milliners handed over the 14 points that made it a hat thrown into the big ring of international fashion squabbling. They say that the rue was angry once too often and that American women will not buy the toothpick or chemise dresses that Paris launched for the new season.

Whatever the cause may be hips is hips, as Fifth avenue windows all too well display. 'Tis the fashion season of the bouffant the billowy, the exaggerated, the puffed and pouched, and the slinky adhesive gowns must gather dust for a wee at least. Naturally this craze for a distended skirt has launched carloads of coarse stiff fabrics upon the cloth market. Bathroom toweling, crash, awning hammock material and denims are in full bloom as fashioned into dresses of every type.

Although many of the midsummer gowns use natural colored toweling, there is a tendency to dip these sturdy fabrics into dyes of every hue and emblazon them with weird, conventional, intricate patterns. Regular upholsterer's cretonne in color combinations that fight or purr are frequent, and even old paisley shawls are found made up into new bustled dresses. A leading house shows a street dress fashioned of heavy dull blue and rose cretonne. Although an occasional rose can be defined in the maze of intricate patterning, the general effect is like a dark-flowered cotton foulard. The material is inset with a panel of sheer white organdie upon which are scattered girly-girly bows of French blue metallic ribbon and pale pink rosebuds. A bustle distends the skirt through the hips, while the bodice is snugly Alsatian laced.

Of pouch pockets there is no end on the summer's skirts. Most of them so distend that they add several feet to the hip circumference. Over panniers or hip drapes are wired so that there is no danger they will fall into soft lines. Tier skirts of as many as eight rows of ruffles are running amuck upon the avenue, and the top three tiers are weird into shade and chandelier effects. Flaring bottoms of skirts have completely supplanted the old three-inch-around model and a boy-denish, masculine stride is rapidly killing off mincing footsteps.

Lowly ironing-board covering is being made into dresses that carry a price tag in three figures. This heaviest, cheapest kind of crash is embellished with scallops and embroideries in Chinese red or Algerian blue, and flaunts wierd pouch pockets or side skirt drapes. Occasionally, heavy strips of white kid or ordinary harness leather are stitched into mammoth side pockets for the hip width effect.

But even though crash and cretonne add their terrors to a hot summer, there are many models shown is sheerest of organdies and voiles. But these atone in bouffantness for all they lack in fashionable coarseness of texture. Quite a novelty is shown in a black chiffon taffeta with lace overskirt edged with yellow organdie ruffles wired over the hips. Another model sports roundabout garlands of roses on wire stems which confine the fullness of the skirt at the top, but release it in a billowing swirl at the bottom. Skirt bottoms, by the way, have much individuality and leap from 14 above to a staid seven.

Midsummer evening gowns are most elaborate and are as heavy with velvet plush and fur as at Christmas time. Many of these heavy satin or velvet skirts are bustled and hand-painted in gorgeous eccentric patterns, such as with a red pitcher plant, a screaming parrot, or a clump of ferns. But "the hips—the hips the thing."
